REBEL FORCES INVADE STATE OF SAO PAULO

Claiming Important
Gains; Little Opposition

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 10.—Encountering no serious opposition, rebel forces invaded the state of Sao Paulo from two sources today, it was stated in a message from Rio Grande, southern headquarters of the insurrectionaries.

The message quoted wireless advice from rebel leaders in Sao Paulo state. The advice declared the revolutionists had invaded Sao Paulo simultaneously at Itararé and Irapava.

In spite of the fact the federal authorities were reported to have flung up a strong border guard at all strategic points in Sao Paulo, the advice declared the invasion was made in the face of "slightest opposition."

The messages indicated the rebels had made tremendously important gains in their determined

BANDIT SLAIN AND PAL BEATEN

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 10.—One bandit is dead and another is suffering from a severe beating today following an attempt to hold up and rob a filling station here last night. The robbery was frustrated by Patrolman Harry Holtman, who shot Earl Martin, 21, of Stearns, Ky., and slugged Charles Stanton, 24, of Union City, Ind.

Martin died in a hospital an hour after he had been shot in the chest by the officer.

Holtman broke up the attempted holdup when he noticed a stolen automobile in front of the gasoline station and investigated. He surprised the two men in the act of holding up William Foley, the station attendant, took their weapons from them and shot Martin when the latter attempted to escape.

The patrolman and Stanton engaged in a hand-to-hand fight and the bandit was knocked unconscious by several blows on the head. Stanton is held for investigation.

(BULLETIN)
LONDON, Oct. 10.—Cheated of victory when their goal was almost in sight Capt. J. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry P. Connor were forced to land on an isolated beach on Stilly Island, off the westernmost tip of England this afternoon because of engine trouble according to reports reaching Croyden Airdrome.

The monoplane Columbia which thus achieved its second trans-Atlantic crossing was forced to land near the little town of Triscone, St. Mary's, Cornwall, the westernmost county of England.

First reports reaching Croyden failed to give details of the plane's descent but stated merely that engine trouble had caused the airmen to bring down their plane.

By International News Service
Ocean liners and tramps of the sea churning the North Atlantic along the Great Circle shipping route watched today for the pale yellow wings and white body of the Bellanca monoplane Columbia, which soared away from Harbor Grace, N. F., at 11:20 yesterday morning in the hope of sighting the spires of London by noon today.

At its controls sat Captain J. Errol Boyd, first Canadian to enlist in the Royal Air force during the war, and Lieutenant Harry P. Connor, of the United States naval reserves. Like their weatherbeaten craft which three years ago carried Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine from Roosevelt Field into the heart of Germany, the intrepid fliers who dared the sea without radio protection have long since seasoned themselves in the arduous task of long distance flying.

Both flew to Bermuda and back with Roger C. Williams last July.

Under the expert navigation of Lieutenant Connor, the airmen left the mainland determined to dash across to Croyden airdrome within twenty-three hours, which would beat all flying records for the 2,500 mile hop. With the exception of a few showers, favorable weather prevailed along their route. International News Service reports showed.

Lack of communication facilities with the Columbia rendered close check on their progress difficult, with sightings by steamers along their path the only resource. While frequent reports were anticipated as the sun cleared the atmosphere during the day, they remained unheard of last night. Anxiety for their safety was not left in aviation circles, however, it being pointed out that word of the plane's progress could hardly be expected in the blackness of night, over the Atlantic.

England, its half-masted flags still mourning the valiant men who soared off to their death last Saturday in the dirigible R-101, was nevertheless ready to welcome the new aerial feat. Much interest was apparent in London this morning and speculation ran rife as to the success of the venture.

The flight itself equals that of Lindbergh's spectacular jump from New York to Paris. Made over practically the same course and already flown by three others, its success depends on the skill and coolness of Captain Boyd. The utmost navigation skill of Lieutenant Connor will be required to bring the craft to its object unaided by radio or other scientific accomplishments.

The same sturdy engine, a whirlwind powered Bellanca, is drumming the ship across a path it few once before. This time it lifted a load of some 5,500 pounds, including 465 gallons of gasoline. This was sufficient fuel for forty-eight hours, or twice the time the fliers hoped to consume in their attempted dash from Newfoundland to England.

The fliers Captain J. Errol Boyd and Harry P. Connor will find the weather in the vicinity of the Irish coast favorable today, with light westerly winds and good visibility prevailing.

SPEAKERS TO HELP REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN IN OHIO ASSIGNED

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10.—Arrangements for speaking engagements in Ohio of several national Republican speakers were completed today at Republican state headquarters here.

These speakers include Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, Congressman John C. Ketcham of Michigan; assistant secretary of Agriculture Renick W. Dunlap; former Governor D. W. Davis, of Idaho; Congressman Leon C. Dyer, of Missouri; author of several anti-lynching measures; William Hueston, Washington, D. C., assistant solicitor of the postoffice department; John C. Banket, editor of the Indianapolis World, Negro newspaper, and J. C. Oiden, field agent of the National Association for Perpetuation of the memory of Benefactors of the American Negro. Governor Myers Y. Cooper's speaking itinerary for next week follows: Monday, October 13, Preble County road opening in afternoon and at Eaton at night; Tuesday, Toledo, afternoon and

Business And Labor For
McCulloch Says
Bricker

Addressing the opening rally of the Republican campaign in Greene County Thursday night at the Elks' Club, John Bricker, member of the state utilities commission, charged Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic candidate for United States senator, with attempting to inject a prejudicial issue which is unimportant into the present campaign.

Mr. Bricker, who was assistant attorney general under Charles Crabbie, was a candidate for attorney general two years ago and was appointed to succeed Roscoe McCulloch on the state utilities commission when McCulloch was named United States senator, asserted that nothing can be accomplished by voting for a wet candidate for the senate.

"Business men are beginning to see there is a business principle in the election of a United States senator," he declared. "Business will not permit and labor will not stand for the defeat of McCulloch in the senatorial race."

The speaker declared he has found a strong Republican sentiment prevailing in overflow meetings over the state. He spoke particularly of the larger counties, predicting that Mahoning County will give Governor Coper a 7,000 majority at the November election and that McCulloch will also carry the county and the district.

Attitude of people living in the rural districts is against Bulkley because of his wet leanings, he claimed.

Accusing Bulkley of carefully avoiding the tariff issue, Bricker lauded the Republican tariff for its protection of the farmer.

He blamed John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, for attempting to discredit the Hoover administration with a million dollar fund for a newspaper campaign directed against the President, and declared the President must have his policies upheld in Ohio, this being the home state and home district of Senator S. D. Fess, Republican national committee chairman.

"Everywhere I hear optimistic reports regarding Governor Cooper's chances for re-election," the speaker also declared, emphasizing the necessity of getting out the Republican vote at the election. He asserted the Republicans have no need to worry providing a large vote is cast at the election.

The speaker said that in view of the tax amendment passed in 1929, the next session of the state legislature will be the most important in the last quarter of a

Two Indictments A re
Secret; Ventilation
For Jail Urged

A joint indictment against Herman Reisner and Harold Wallace, former constables in the justice of the peace court operated by Reisner's father in Jefferson Twp., Montgomery County, on a charge of impersonating officers, was among twelve true bills reported by the October grand jury late Thursday afternoon after a two-day session.

Two secret indictments were included in those returned by the grand jury, which also ignored one case and continued another. More than forty witnesses were examined Monday and Thursday.

Following its customary inspection of the county jail the grand jury also made the usual recommendation that better ventilation should be provided "by all means" at the jail.

The indictment returned against Reisner and Wallace charges the men falsely represented themselves as constables.

Posing as officers and working out of the court of Squire John T. Hornaday, colored Miami Twp. justice of the peace, the men are alleged by officials of the auto clubs of Greene and Montgomery Counties to have apprehended autoists between September 8 and September 24 along the Greene-Montgomery County line and escorted them to Magistrate Hornaday's court, regardless of whether the arrests were made outside the township in which Hornaday has jurisdiction.

It is claimed that while Reisner was appointed by Hornaday as a "special constable" for a six-months period, Wallace did not hold even this title and that neither

PILOT HURT AS SHIP CRASHES IN DENSE FOG

Forced Landing Ends In Disaster For Test
Pilot

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—Carl Johnson, pilot for the Great Lakes Aircraft Corporation, was seriously injured here today when his plane crashed to the ground in a dense fog.

Johnson was making a test flight when the accident occurred. He was alone in the plane. The crash occurred on a field near the Great Lakes Aircraft Corporation field.

Witnesses said that the motor of Johnson's plane cut out just as the pilot was preparing to land. The right wheel of the craft struck a rut in the field and "nosed up" snapping the propeller of the plane and wrecking the right wing.

At Fairmount Hospital, where Johnson was rushed following the accident, it was said that the pilot suffered severe cuts about the face and legs.

When Johnson took off on his test flight this morning the fog which has been hanging over the city partially lifted. It started to settle back toward earth after a few minutes of lying, however, and Johnson decided to land quickly.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 10.—Adam Wilson, 55, formerly of Mechanicsburg, O., was instantly killed today when he was caught in the gears of a stone crusher while he was working on a highway near here.

Wilson's body was horribly mutilated before the machine was stopped by fellow workmen. He was employed by the Scioto Lime and Stone Co.

POLA NEGRI RENEWS SUIT FOR DIVORCE

PARIS, Oct. 10.—The matrimonial troubles of Pola Negri, the American film star, took a "turn for the worse" today when the actress presented herself unannounced at the Palais De Justice and demanded a divorce from Prince Serge Mdivana, young Georgian nobleman.

Miss Negri applied for continuance of the divorce action which ended in a dramatic reconciliation in the judges' chambers at the Palais De Justice last December. At that time, the Paris courts hesitated to grant the divorce, chiefly because of the widespread publicity which had attended the action. The judge then followed the traditional procedure of giving the interested parties one final chance to patch up their difficulties. The prince looked at Pola and Pola looked at the prince. Then they flew into each other's arms. Today, however, Miss Negri came to the Palais alone and made it clear the reconciliation had been

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—City officials here will permit almost anything of a community nature, but they drew the line today on the operation of a "community still."

CITY OWES FOR MAINTENANCE OF PRISONERS

Examiner Reveals No
Contract Exists For Jail Board

For the last four years at least and possibly eight, the county has been footing the bills for maintenance of prisoners committed to the county jail under city ordinance cases, whereas in reality the expense of feeding these inmates should have been shouldered by the city, it became known Thursday.

Steps are now being taken, it is revealed, to rectify this situation, although it remains a question whether the city will legally be able to recompense the county in full, at the rate of seventy-five cents a day, for all prisoners committed to jail under city ordinance cases and cared for without cost to the city during the last four to eight years.

It is estimated, based on an average monthly board bill of from $150 to $200 for maintenance of city prisoners, that the city may owe the county anywhere between $15,000 and $20,000, although restitution for the entire amount may not be possible under the law.

This state of affairs of which city and county officials have been ignorant for many years, was brought to light by F. P. Householder, state examiner, who is at present making an audit of the books of county offices.

The examiner discovered that for years no contract has existed between the city and county for payment by the city for the up-keep of prisoners convicted under city ordinance and remanded to jail to work out the assessments in default of payment.

County Commissioners have had a contract with Sheriff Ohmer Tate for the last four years whereby the sheriff feeds all inmates and is reimbursed by the county at the rate of seventy-five cents a day.

SENATOR SIMEON D. FESS

SENATE COMMITTEE FOCUSING PROBE ON DEMOCRATIC RAGES

New Jersey Senatorial Candidate First Under Fire

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—After devoting six months to probing Republican primaries, the senate campaign fund committee today initiated a series of inquiries into Democratic senatorial contests.

Opening a hearing at Wilmington, Del., today, the committee demonstrated its nonpartisanship by investigating campaign charges against former Senator Thomas F. Bayard, who won the Democratic senatorial nomination there. Next week, the committee will investigate the Democratic senatorial primaries in North Carolina and Tennessee.

Thus far, the inquiries have aided only the Democrats and fomented differences between regular Republicans and their insurgent brethren.

In Delaware, the activities of John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, toward aiding wet Democrats to win over dry opponents, are expected to be aired. Raskob was said to have aided Bayard to win the nomination over Josiah Marvel, a dry. The convention, which chose Bayard, was reported pledged to Marvin, only to reverse its pledge on a secret ballot.

In North Carolina, the committee will probe charges that New York Democrats sent money to help Josiah Bailey defeat Senator F. M. Simmons, because of the latter's opposition to the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith. The committee's investigators have reported they found traces of "outside funds."

FIVE INJURED BY BOMB BLAST

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—Five persons were hurt, one of them critically, when an explosion which is believed to have been caused by a bomb planted by a gang of "black-handers," wrecked a grocery store and dwelling house here today.

Steve Jacko, 29, proprietor of the blasted store, is in Charity Hospital suffering from serious burns. Mrs. Rose Jacko, 26, his wife, and their three children were also burned in the explosion.

Jacko told police that he received an unsigned letter a month ago ordering him to place $500 in a mail box in a nearby apartment building.

REPUBLICANS STAND FIRM ON PARTY POLICY

Praises Tariff In Addressing Throng At Court House

By PHIL FRAME
"We Republicans stand today where we have always stood—firm believers in the protective tariff principle properly applied as a sound economic policy of government—a policy of government that has brought prosperity unequalled by any other nation on earth."

This declaration was made by Vice President Charles Curtis, who paused briefly in Xenia early Friday afternoon en route to Indianapolis, Ind., and addressed a huge throng of Xenians on the south steps of the Court House.

The vice president, in whose veins runs the blood of the American Indians, declared it gave him the greatest pleasure to speak before an assemblage of people not far from the historic site of Old Chillicothe, now the village of Old Town, the pioneer village of the Shawnee Indian tribe.

"When I go back to my home in Kansas I am going to make it my duty to see some of the Indians of the Shawnee tribe and tell them of my visit here," he announced.

The vice president was able to deliver a longer talk than had been anticipated because his train, scheduled to leave Xenia at 11 o'clock Friday afternoon, was somewhat late.

Defending the Hoover administration for its accomplishments, Vice President Curtis said that he desires also to do everything in his power to help elect the Republican ticket in Ohio from top to bottom. He lauded the administration of Governor Cooper and spoke of Senator Roscoe McCulloch, junior Ohio senator, in terms of highest praise.

Declaring that he stood squarely for the protective tariff policy as advocated by William McKinley, who knew and understood the principals better than any other American before or since his time, the distinguished speaker also asserted on the immigration question that if it were in his power he would close the gates today against any foreigner coming into America.

The vice president touched on many issues, reviewed the administration's accomplishments in the inland waterways system, asserted the present administration inaugurated the greatest building program in history which applies to every state in the union, and recommended an appropriation of fifty million dollars for public road improvement.

The vice president was introduced by Senator Simeon D. Fess, who classed Curtis as one of the greatest statesmen since his time. "There is no greater inspiration that can come to any young man or woman than the chance of seeing and hearing a man of the distinction of the present second in command in the United States under President Hoover," he said.

"For thirty-eight years he has been in the forefront of the battle fighting for the principle of the Republican party. Never once has he compromised or surrendered from the party's high principles."

Escorted by a party of Xenians, the vice president and senator motored to Xenia from Yellow Springs arriving at 1 o'clock. Pupils of the city public and parochial schools were dismissed in order to have the opportunity of witnessing the informal public reception planned in his honor here.

Attorney L. T. Marshall, former state senator and chairman of the county Republican executive committee, first introduced Senator Fess. The speakers spoke into a microphone, with amplifiers clarifying the remarks so that the talks were clearly heard by the enormous throng which crowded the Court House lawn and extended out onto E. Main St.

The O. S. and S. O. Home cadet battalion and band met the party and marched ahead of the autos bearing the local reception committee and the distinguished guests. After his address, the vice president shook hands with as many people as possible as he walked to the curb, where an auto awaited to transport him and Senator Fess to the Pennsylvania station to catch the train for Indianapolis.

The vice president, who was the principal speaker at the banquet climaxing the first day of the sesquicentennial celebration at Springfield Thursday evening, accompanied Senator Simeon D. Fess to Yellow Springs and passed the night at the Fess home.

At 9:30 o'clock Friday morning he was presented to the students and faculty of Antioch College and a few village residents in the assembly hall at the college and delivered a brief talk to the gathering.

Discussing standards of living in America today, Vice President Curtis declared "we are living in

By PHIL FRAME

"We Republicans stand today where we have always stood—firm believers in the protective tariff principle properly applied as a sound economic policy of government—a policy of government that has brought prosperity unequalled by any other nation on earth."

This declaration was made by Vice President Charles Curtis, who paused briefly in Xenia early Friday afternoon en route to Indianapolis, Ind., and addressed a huge throng of Xenians on the south steps of the Court House.

The vice president, in whose veins runs the blood of the American Indians, declared it gave him the greatest pleasure to speak before an assemblage of people not far from the historic site of Old Chillicothe, now the village of Old Town, the pioneer village of the Shawnee Indian tribe.

"When I go back to my home in Kansas I am going to make it my duty to see some of the Indians of the Shawnee tribe and tell them of my visit here," he announced.

The vice president was able to deliver a longer talk than had been anticipated because his train, scheduled to leave Xenia at 10 o'clock Friday afternoon, was somewhat late.

Defending the Hoover administration for its accomplishments, Vice President Curtis said that his desires also to do everything in his power to help elect the Republican ticket in Ohio from top to bottom. He lauded the administration of Governor Cooper and spoke of Senator Roscoe McCulloch, junior Ohio senator, in terms of highest praise.

Declaring that he stood squarely for the protective tariff policy as advocated by William McKinley, who knew and understood the principles better than any other American before or since his time, the distinguished speaker also asserted on the immigration question that if it were in his power he would close the gates today against any foreigner coming into America.

The vice president touched on many issues, and the administration's accomplishments in the inland waterways system, asserted the present administration inaugurated the greatest building program in history which applies to every state in the union, and recommended an appropriation of fifty million dollars for public road improvement.

The vice president was introduced by Senator Simeon D. Fess, who clasped Curtis as one of the greatest statesmen now living. "There is no greater inspiration that can come to any young man or woman than the chance of seeing and hearing a man of the distinction of the present second in command in the United States under President Hoover," he said.

"For thirty-eight years he has been in the forefront of the battle fighting for the principle of the Republican party. Never once has he compromised or surrendered from the party's high principles."

Escorted by a party of Xenians, the vice president and senator motored to Xenia from Yellow Springs arriving at 1 o'clock. Pupils of the city public and parochial schools were dismissed in order to have the opportunity of witnessing the informal public reception planned in his honor here.

Attorney L. T. Marshall, former state senator and chairman of the county Republican executive committee, first introduced Senator Fess. The speakers spoke into a microphone, with amplifiers clarifying the remarks so that the talks were clearly heard by the enormous throng which crowded the Court House lawn and extended out onto E. Main St.

The O. S. and S. O. Home cadet battalion and band met the party and marched ahead of the autos bearing the local reception committee and the distinguished guests. After his address, the vice president shook hands with as many people as possible as he walked to the curb, where an auto awaited to transport him and Senator Fess to the Pennsylvania station to catch the train for Indianapolis.

At 9:30 o'clock Friday morning he was presented to the students and faculty of Abilene College and a few village residents in the assembly hall at the college and delivered a brief talk to the gathering.

Discussing standards of living in America today, Vice President Curtis declared "we are living in

SENATOR SIMEON D. FESS

SENATE COMMITTEE FOCUSING PROBE ON DEMOCRATIC RACES

New Jersey Senatorial Candidate First Under Fire

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—After devoting six months to probing Republican primaries, the senate campaign fund committee today initiated a series of inquiries into Democratic senatorial contests.

Opening a hearing at Wilmington, Del., today, the committee demonstrated its nonpartisanship by investigating campaign charges against former Senator Thomas F. Bayard, who was the Democratic senatorial nomination there. Next week, the committee will investigate the Democratic senatorial primaries in North Carolina and Tennessee.

Thus far, the inquiries have aided only the Democrats and fomented differences between regular Republicans and their insurgent brethren.

In Delaware, the activities of John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, toward aiding wet Democrats to win over dry opponents, are expected to be aired. Raskob was said to have aided Bayard to win the nomination over Josiah Marvel, a dry. The convention, which chose Bayard, was reported pledged to Marvin, only to reverse its pledge on a secret ballot.

In North Carolina, the committee will probe charges that New York Democrats sent money to help Josiah Bailey defeat Senator F. M. Simmons, because of the latter's opposition to the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith. The committee's investigators have reported they found traces of "outside funds."

FIVE INJURED BY BOMB BLAST

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—Five persons were hurt, one of them critically, when an explosion which is believed to have been caused by a bomb planted by a gang of "black-handers," wrecked a grocery store and dwelling house here today.

Steve Jacko, 29, proprietor of the blasted store, is in Charity Hospital suffering from serious burns. Mrs. Rose Jacko, 26, his wife, and their three children were also burned in the explosion.

Jacko told police that he received an unsigned letter a month ago ordering him to place $500 in a mail box in a nearby apartment building.

ORDINANCE PROVIDES ELECTRIC PURCHASE

COMMISSION AGAIN FACES SUGGESTION TO ACQUIRE SYSTEM

Merchants Urge Plan; Legislation Placed On First Reading

An ordinance authorizing a preliminary survey with the necessary, by condemnation of intention of purchasing, if proceedings, the electrical distribution system of The Dayton Power and Light Co. within the corporate limits of Xenia, was introduced by Dr. Frank M. Chambliss, president of City Commission, and placed on its first reading at the commission meeting Thursday night.

The ordinance contains exactly the same proposals embodied in a resolution introduced a month ago, on which a tie vote resulted, Commissioners Chambliss and Jacob Kany voting in favor of the resolution and Commissioners Harry M. Fisher and H. L. Binder casting dissenting votes.

The proposed ordinance, which was placed on its initial reading without a word of discussion, contains these provisions:

1.—That the proposals of the Dayton Power and Light Co. in regard to a contract for furnishing electric energy are refused and declared to be wholly unsatisfactory.

2.—That the city manager is hereby directed to employ competent legal counsel and to enter into a contract with competent engineers to make a complete, accurate and disinterested survey and appraisal of the property of the D. P. & L. Co. comprising the electrical distribution system within the city limits. That such contract and investigation shall provide for the procurement of expert opinion as to whether it is feasible for the city of Xenia to purchase, own and maintain the distribution system of the Dayton company, or whether it is feasible for the city to construct its own distribution system.

3.—That the legal counsel employed, together with the manager, auditor and solicitor, are directed to prepare the necessary legislation and to make the necessary financial arrangements for the purchase of the distribution system, if such is deemed advisable by the engineers and experts, or that if the engineers and experts believe it feasible for the city to construct its own system, and that such is preferable to the existing system, then the special counsel and officials shall draw the necessary legislation and make the necessary financial arrangements for such construction.

Passage of this ordinance has been advocated by the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association which, by a majority vote taken at its last meeting, again communicated to the commission Thursday night, in the form of a letter, the wish of the association that the commission give its "most conscientious and earnest consideration to the urgent request of the association to proceed with the purchase of the distribution system."

The letter advised commissioners that the recently proposed rates of the Dayton company are by no means advantageous to the citizens of Xenia, adding: "Upon checking up on a certain number of bills particularly in the mercantile section, it is found that the so-called rate reduction, recently proposed by the D. P. & L. Co., will, as a matter of fact, actually result in considerably higher monthly bills in many instances."

The merchants are prepared to substantiate this fact for the satisfaction of City Commission, and in view of the fact that the Dayton company has very definitely stated that this is the very best that it has to offer, the association again urges the commission to proceed either with the purchase of the present distribution system, or the erection of an entirely new one."

An age of speed—the master passion of the day is to conquer time. Addressing his remarks particularly to Antioch students, the vice president characterized them as the leaders of the new day. In conclusion he gave several maxims for success.

"Do not wait for opportunity to come to you—go out and meet it. Then take advantage of these opportunities. Have a plan in life. Make provision for today and for tomorrow. Work no matter how dark the future may look and finally, rely entirely upon yourselves."

"Do not think when you leave college with your diploma that your education is ended. When you leave you have merely built a foundation. You begin then to live."

"You read in the newspapers that what young men and women need is an electrical check writer. You do not want that and good business does not want that. Business of all kinds is not looking for electric check writers but for young men and women who will be leaders of the future."

The vice president was introduced by Senator Fess, former Antioch president, who said it had always been Antioch's policy since Horace Mann was the first president to have great people come to Antioch and meet the students and faculty. He declared that the visit of the vice president was a continuation of this policy. Arthur E. Morgan, college president, thanked the senator for the opportunity given the college of meeting the distinguished personage.

Later in the morning the vice president was tendered an informal reception by the civic club of the village and at noon he was the luncheon guest of Senator Fess at his residence.

Greene County Plays Prominent Part In Trail Dedication Program Here

Two floats, both honoring General J. Warren Keifer, Springfield, who at 95 is the only living major general of the Civil War and the only man who held that office in two wars, the Civil and the Spanish-American, featured Greene County's part in the sesqui-centennial parade at Springfield Thursday afternoon.

One float constructed under the direction of Professor Stites, art and aesthetic teacher at Antioch College, represented General Keifer as a youth, receiving inspiration from DR. GALLOWAY, Horace Mann, first president of Antioch.

The other float was built at the O. S. and S. O. Home and represented General Keifer as co-founder of the institution. General Keifer was not only one of the founders of the institution, but as commander of the G. A. R. began in 1869 at the Sandusky encampment the fight that resulted in the state taking over the institution already established here.

The O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Battalion and thirty-five piece band, and a battalion of marching girls and officials, participated in the parade. All Greene County Boy Scout troops also took part. Arrangements for the Greene County part in the program were in charge of Dr. W. A. Galloway and

JOHN T. BROWN

Homer T. Gratz, field executive of Tecumseh Area, Boy Scouts of America.

Urbana Scouts had a float representing the Shawnee Indians and Greene County Scouts followed with a float depicting the first settlers, followed by a representation of the capture of Daniel Boone and his twenty-seven salt makers by Indians. B. H. Slagle, Xenia, appropriately costumed, represented Simon Kenton in the party.

Two markers at Old Town, three miles north of Xenia, designating two historic spots on the Ohio Revolutionary Memorial Trail which was followed by General George Rogers Clark on his way to the site of the battle of Piqua, were dedicated at brief but impressive ceremonies Thursday afternoon by Lieut. Gov. John T. Brown and the Ohio Revolutionary Memorial Commission, en route to Springfield for the major celebration there.

Lieut. Gov. Brown substituted for Governor Cooper, who was unable to accompany the commission on the tour from the site of old Fort Washington at Cincinnati along the route of the trail to Springfield.

Speaking briefly, the lieutenant governor paid tribute to the pioneer settlers who hewed the pathway for civilization in the northwest territory.

The party accompanying him included Mrs. Flen D. Sampson, wife of the governor of Kentucky; Mr. Brown, of the Kentucky Pioneer Commission; Mrs. James Darnell, of the Kentucky state park commission, and James L. Eisenberg, of the Kentucky Progress Commission, and A. D. Hosterman, chairman of the Ohio Revolutionary Memorial Trail committee. The party was escorted from Lebanon to Old Town through Xenia by a committee of Xenians headed by Dr. Galloway, president of the Greene County Historical Society.

Presiding at the dedicatory program at Old Town, held on the site of Old Chillicothe, famous Indian village which was destroyed four times by pioneer forces but remained the leading village of the Shawnee Indians until 1807, Dr. Galloway presented a replica of the thirteen-star flag of the colonies to the Old Town little red schoolhouse, which stands on the mound which was formerly the site of the old bar council house. It was accepted by W. B. Bryson for the Xenia Twp. board of education.

Dr. Galloway also presented to the gathering Mrs. C. B. Beal and Mrs. J. E. Lewis, great-granddaughters of Jennie Gilmore, who with her son was held captive for seven years by the Indians near the site of Old Chillicothe. The markers dedicated the location of Old Chillicothe and the spot just north of the overhead Pennsylvania bridge where Simon Kenton, famous Indian fighter, ran the gauntlet.

From Old Town, the Xenia party consisting of the Home battalion and band, a number of Home girls, Boy Scouts and others went to Springfield to take part in the sesqui-centennial parade at 3 p. m. More than 200 Xenians were present at the ceremonies at Old Town. The Home band furnished music and during the program the colonial flag was raised with military honors by Home battalion officers on a new flag pole, gift of John P. Bodeket, this city. Daughters of the American Revolution and pupils of the Old Town grade school repeated their pledge of fealty to the flag.

OF SAO PAULO

attempt to unseat the government of President Washington Luis.

All available federal forces were reported to have been concentrated around Sao Paulo, the leading seaport and industrial center of Brazil and around Rio De Janeiro, the capital.

Sao Paulo had been regarded as the most loyal state in the entire republic. When the first spark of insurrection burst into flame, Sao Paulo immediately organized volunteer regiments to aid the regular federal forces in keeping the revolutionists at bay.

A short while before the message reporting the invasion had been received, General Nepumeceno Costa, commandant of the federal troops in the south, advised his headquarters at Florianopolis that his forces were "actively checking" the rebel advance toward Sao Paulo.

Additional federal setbacks were reported in other dispatches reaching here. A wireless from Rio Grande declared that the federal forces which had unsuccessfully attempted to defend Pernambuco from the rebels on Saturday had joined up with the revolutionaries and were aiding in the invasion of Bahia State.

A dispatch from Uruguayana said that a force of 8,000 rebels now was invading Bahia, clashing several times with federal troops and invariably emerging victorious. In Bahia also many federalists were reported to have gone over to the revolutionaries. No estimate of the casualties from the fighting in Bahia state was available.

According to Montevideo dispatches from Rio Grande, the rebels now claim that the federal government's authority is limited to the Rio De Janeiro and some cities of Sao Paulo state. Students at federal aviation schools in Sao Paulo were reported to have thrown in their lot with the subversive movement.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 10.—A vigorous manifesto calling upon the people of Brazil to renounce the revolution was issued by President Washington Luis here today.

Characterizing the revolution as a movement "without ideals or principles," the chief executive declared its leaders were political agitators who were dissatisfied with the results of the last election, and that their only apparent aim was to prevent President-elect Julio Prestes from sitting in the presidential chair.

day, or twenty-five cents for each of three meals he serves every day.

The sheriff in his records has not always made a distinction between city prisoners and those committed from other courts, because the county had not advised him this was necessary. For this reason it may be impossible for the examiner to distinguish from records the exact amount due the county from the city.

The examiner has already checked the records back four years and is expected to continue his research work back still further to eight years.

Another angle which presents itself, however, is the fact City Solicitor W. A. Miller has advised city officials there are legal obstacles in the path of a settlement of the city's debt in full.

Other courts have ruled in similar cases it is said, that in the absence of an agreement or contract between the city and county for maintenance of city prisoners in the county jail, the city is not legally justified in making restitution at a rate exceeding forty cents a day, indicating the possibility the county may be unable to collect on a basis of seventy-five cents a day for city prisoners during the years no contract has existed here.

From now on, however, the situation will be remedied under a tentative agreement whereby, dating from last October 1, the city will pay seventy-five cents a day for feeding city prisoners, until such a time within the next few weeks that a regulation contract may be entered into with the county.

Upon learning that the county was spending money unnecessarily for maintaining city prisoners, county officials submitted to the city this week board bills for the months of last August and September, showing that city inmates were served 686 meals in August and 835 meals in September at the rate of twenty-five cents a meal. Payment by the city of $171.50 for August and $208.75 for September was sought.

The city, however, having no money available to pay these bills, turned a deaf ear to the request, and countered with the agreement to pay for maintenance beginning October 1 until the entire problem has apparently proved agreeable with the county.

REPUBLICANS FLAY BULKLEY AT RALLY HERE

century, and pleaded for reelection of Governor Cooper in the interest of harmony between the legislature and the chief executive of the state. He referred to the split between the Republican legislature and the Dopahey administration.

The Democrats, he said, have no hope of controlling the state legislature and are centering their efforts on the election of Bulkley to the senate and White as governor.

Milton J. Scott, Chillicothe, state senator from this, the fifth-sixth senatorial district, who was also scheduled as a principal speaker at the Republican dinner-meeting, was unable to fill the engagement.

Attorney L. T. Marshall, former state senator and chairman of the Greene County Republican Executive Committee, was in charge of the meeting and also addressed the gathering, asserting that defeat of McCulloch by Bulkley might mean organization of the United States senate by the Democrats. In that event four of the most important legislative chairmanships might go to southern states, he said.

Attorney Marshall also charged Bulkley with making his entire campaign on one issue—repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, at the same time refusing to commit himself on any other policy. He declared the Republican party would be willing to leave the prohibition question out of the campaign entirely but that Bulkley continues to make his appeal to the radically wet vote.

"Never has the Republican party had a slate so acceptable as the candidates now on its ticket," he also asserted. He also derided the fact the Democrats are using the present depressed condition of the country for political purposes.

Attorney Marshall disclosed that Senator McCulloch will appear in Xenia to address a public rally October 21 and that Senator Fess, following his usual custom, will address a campaign rally in the Opera House here on the night before the election.

He called attention to the Seventh District Republican rally to be held at Springfield October 24 and announced he will appoint a committee composed of one person from each township in the county to promote the meeting and stimulate interest in order that this county may send as large a delegation as possible.

Covers were laid for about fifty persons at the "love feast," which was preceded by a dinner and was attended by members of the Republican county central and executive committees and local Republican candidates for county offices. County candidates were called upon for brief talks.

ORDINANCE PROVIDES ELECTRIC PURCHASE

COMMISSION AGAIN FACES SUGGESTION TO ACQUIRE SYSTEM

Merchants Urge Plan, Legislation Placed On
First Reading

An ordinance authorizing a preliminary survey with the necessary, by condemnation of the electrical distribution system of The Dayton Power and Light Co. with the corporation limits of Xenia, was introduced by Dr. Frank M. Chambliss, president of City Commission, and placed on its first reading at the commission meeting Thursday night.

The ordinance contains exactly the same proposals embodied in a resolution introduced a month ago, on which a vote resulted, Commissioners Chambliss and Jacob Kany voting in favor of the resolution and Commissioners Harry M. Fisher and H. L. Binder casting dissenting votes.

The proposed ordinance, which was placed on its first reading without a word of discussion, contains the following provisions:

1.—That the proposals of the Dayton Power and Light Co. in regard to a contract for furnishing electric energy are refused and declared to be wholly unsatisfactory.

2.—That the city manager is hereby directed to employ competent legal counsel and to enter into a contract with competent engineers to make a complete, accurate and disinterested survey and appraisal of the property of the D. P. and L. Co., comprising the electrical distribution system within the city limits. That such contract and investigation shall provide for the procurement of expert opinion as to whether it is feasible for the city of Xenia to purchase, own and maintain the distribution system of the Dayton company, or whether it is feasible for the city to construct its own distribution system.

3.—That the legal counsel employed, together with the manager and solicitor, are directed to prepare the necessary legislation and to make the necessary financial arrangements for the purchase of the distribution system, if such is deemed advisable by the engineers and experts, or that if the engineers and experts believe it feasible for the city to construct its own system, that such is preferable to the existing system, then the special counsel and officials shall draw the necessary legislation and make the necessary financial arrangements for such construction.

REBEL FORCES INVADE STATE OF SAO PAULO

attempt to unseat the government of President Washington Luis.

All available federal forces were reported to have been concentrated around Sao Paulo, the leading seaport and industrial center of Brazil and around Rio De Janeiro, the capital.

Sao Paulo had been regarded as the most loyal state in the entire republic. When the first spark of insurrection burst into flame, Sao Paulo immediately organized volunteer regiments to aid the regular federal forces in keeping the revolutionists at bay.

A short while before the message reporting the invasion had been received, General Nepumoceno Costa, commander of the federal forces which had unsuccessfully attempted to defend Pernambuco from the rebels on Saturday had joined up with the revolutionaries and were aiding in the invasion of Bahia state.

A dispatch from Uruguayana said that a force of 8,000 rebels now was invading Bahia, clashing several times with federal troops and invariably emerging victorious. In Bahia also many federalists were reported to have gone over to the revolutionaries. No estimate of the casualties from the fighting in Bahia state was available.

According to Montevideo dispatches from Rio Grande, the rebels now claim that the federal government's authority is limited to Rio De Janeiro and some cities of Sao Paulo state. Students at federal aviation schools in Sao Paulo were reported to have thrown in their lot with the subversive movement.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 10.—A vigorous manifesto calling upon the people of Brazil to combat the revolution was issued by President Washington Luis here today.

Characterizing the revolution as a movement "without ideals or principles," the chief executive declared its leaders were political agitators who were dissatisfied with the results of the last election, and that their only apparent aim was to prevent President-elect Julio Prestos from sitting in the presidential chair.

CITY OWES FOR MAINTENANCE OF PRISONERS

day, or twenty-five cents for each of three meals he serves every day.

The sheriff in his records has not always made a distinction between city prisoners and those committed from other courts, because the county had not advised him this was necessary. For this reason it may be impossible for the examiner to distinguish from records the exact amount due the county from the city.

The examiner has already checked the records back four years and is expected to continue his research work back still further to eight years.

Another angle which presents itself, however, is the fact City Solicitor W. A. Miller has advised city officials there are legal obstacles in the path of a settlement of the city's debt in full.

Other courts have ruled in similar cases it is said, that in the absence of an agreement or contract between the city and county for maintenance of city prisoners in the county jail, the city is not legally justified in making restitution at a rate exceeding forty cents a day, indicating the possibility the county may be unable to collect on a basis of seventy-five cents a day for city prisoners during the years no contract has existed here.

From now on, however, the situation will be remedied under a tentative agreement whereby, dating from last October 1, the city will pay seventy-five cents a day for feeding city prisoners, until such a time within the next few weeks that a regulation contract may be entered into with the county.

Upon learning that the county was spending money unnecessarily for maintaining city prisoners, county officials submitted to the city this week board bills for the months of last August and September, showing that city inmates were served 686 meals in August and 835 meals in September at the rate of twenty-five cents a meal. Payment by the city of $171.50 for August and $208.75 for September was sought.

The city, however, having no money available to pay these bills, turned a deaf ear to the request, and countered with the agreement to pay for maintenance beginning October 1 until the entire problem is thrashed out. This proposition has apparently proved agreeable with the county.

century, and pleaded for re-election of Governor Cooper in the interest of harmony between the legislature and the chief executive of the state. He referred to the split between the Republican legislature and the Dopahey administration.

The Democrats, he said, have no hope of controlling the state legislature and are centering their efforts on the election of Bulkley to the senate and White as governor.

Milton J. Scott, Chillicothe, state senator from this, the fifth-sixth senatorial district, who was also scheduled as a principal speaker at the Republican dinner-meeting, was unable to fill the engagement. Attorney L. T. Marshall, former state senator and chairman of the Greene County Republican Executive Committee, was in charge of the meeting and also addressed the gathering, asserting that defeat of McCulloch by Bulkley might mean organization of the United States senate by the Democrats. In that event four of the most important legislative chairmanships might go to Southern states, he said.

Attorney Marshall also charged Bulkley with making his entire campaign on one issue—repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, at the same time refusing to commit himself on any other policy. He declared the Republican party would be willing to leave the prohibition question out of the campaign entirely but that Bulkley continues to make his appeal to the radically wet vote.

"Never has the Republican party had a slate so acceptable as the candidates now on its ticket," he also asserted. He also decried the fact the Democrats are using the present depressed condition of the country for political purposes.

Attorney Marshall disclosed that Senator McCulloch will appear in Xenia to address a public rally October 21 and that Senator Fess, following his usual custom, will address a campaign rally in the Opera House here on the night before the election.

He called attention to the Seventh District Republican rally to be held at Springfield October 24 and announced he will appoint a committee composed of one person from each township in the county to promote the meeting and stimulate interest in order that this county may send as large a delegation as possible.

Covers were laid for about fifty persons at the "love feast," which was preceded by a dinner and was attended by members of the Republican county central and executive committees and local Republican candidates for county offices. County candidates were called upon for brief talks.

POLICEMEN PATROL WALL ST. DISTRICT

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Fifty policemen patrolled the financial district today after a threatening letter was received by an official of the New York Stock Exchange.

Contents of the letter were not revealed but they were of sufficient alarm to concentrate the additional force of uniformed men and detectives in the section throughout the night.

The letter was written in a foreign language and was barely legible, according to police. The extra guard will be maintained until Police Commissioner Mulrooney decides whether it is the work of a crank or has some real significance.

NAMES REPUBLICAN WOMEN DIRECTORS

TEARFUL RECEPTION AWAITS BANDITS HERE

MIAMI DEPOSIT BANK

Bandits who invade the Miami Deposit Bank at Yellow Springs will have a crying good time and will leave—if they are able—with tears in their eyes.

The first federal gas and offensive system of protection against daylight bandits in Greene County has been installed in this financial institution.

In an emergency slight touches of foot triggers connected electrically with small button-like devices installed in the lobby will cause gas to spray out. It is claimed that advancing bandits will gasp and forget all thoughts of robbery due to the stinging sensation in their eyes.

Tear gas jets are in various parts of the building and are so hooked up that gas can be readily discharged when ever the need arises.

In view of the recent wave of bank robberies in this section of the state, the Yellow Springs bank sought the utmost protection available and after an investigation decided on the Federal system now installed. The installing was in charge of Edwin E. Mayer, engineer for the Pittsburgh firm. The system is used in many large metropolitan banks and in government treasuries. In a split second gas spreads to Jacksonville, Fla. The rate from Xenia to Ironton, O., is to be $3.20, to Huntington, W. Va., $3.55 and to Charleston, W. Va., $5.35.

CENTRAL OHIO BUS LINES FLIES LOWER SCHEDULE OF RATES

A new tariff, submitted by the Central Ohio Lines, Inc., Xenia, affecting its Chillicothe-Springfield-Xenia bus route, was filed Thursday with the state utilities commission at Columbus.

The new rate schedule, according to Carl Bent, Jamestown, operator of the bus line, proposes lower fares for patrons of the line. The fare from Xenia to Washington is to be reduced from $1.25 to $1 and from Xenia to Chillicothe the reduction is from $2.50 to $2.

At Chillicothe the bus line has an interlocking agreement with the Blue and Gray Transit Co., providing patrons with bus connections to Portsmouth, the fare from Xenia to that city being $2.65.

The Central Ohio Lines, Inc., also has interlocking agreements with other lines enabling patrons to make through connections clear

THREE CHOIRS TO PRESENT NUMBERS

The three choirs of the First Methodist Church will each present a special number at the regular church services next Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, Mrs. Orpha Hull, director, announces.

The adult choir will sing "Crown Him," by Heyter, the junior choir will present, "Days of Youth" by Meredith and the children's choir's number will be "Jesus Lamb," by Ogden. The Misses Helen Ford and Helen Hurley will sing a duet, "How Excellent is Thy Name," by Anna Priscilla Risher. Miss Theda Downing, organist, will be the accompanist for the special numbers.

SCARLET FEVER HITS COUNTY, REPORT FOUR CASES IN XENIA

Six cases of scarlet fever in Xenia and Greene County have been reported to health officials. It was revealed Friday morning. Four of the cases are in Xenia city and the other two are in Fairfield. Authorities are not alarmed, however, as all the cases are of a mild nature.

The following homes have been quarantined in Xenia and Fairfield: Ralph C. Heaton, 430 S. Detroit St., Mrs. Anna Ringer, Elm St.; Lawrence E. Cline, Locust St., and George Conners, colored, Park St., in Xenia and Otto Taylor, Fairfield. Two Taylor children are suffering from the malady.

Health authorities feel that the infantile paralysis epidemic which was prevalent here for a number of weeks is checked as no new cases have been reported for several weeks. Besides the scarlet fever and paratyphoid there are no other contagious diseases in the city and county at present.

Bell, 315 Hill St. Now is the time for members to answer the prayers of the little tots in the Methodist Kindergarten in Cincinnati when they pray, "Give us this day our jelly bread." Each person attending the meeting Monday evening is asked to bring a donation of jelly and make it a "jelly shower" for the kindergarten tots and for the girls in the Friendship Home.

U. B. CLASS HOLDS SUPPER MEETING

Forty-four members and guests of the U. B. Class of the United Brethren Church held a covered dish supper in the church dormitory Thursday evening. Tables for the supper were attractively decorated with Halloween appointments.

Following the supper the regular business session of the class was held and it was decided to serve a supper at the church, Thursday evening, October 30.

HOME CLUB IS ENTERTAINED THURSDAY

"Guest Day" was observed Thursday afternoon when members of the Home Club met at the home of Mrs. C. E. Bone, Springfield Pike. Thirty-three members of the club and their guests were present and enjoyed a delightful program which was presented during the afternoon.

At the close of the program Mrs. Bone assisted by a committee of women served a salad course. Members of the committee were: Mrs. Arthur Dean, Mrs. Walter Nash and Mrs. R. D. Williamson.

RECENT BRIDE IS HONORED AT SHOWER

For the pleasure of Mrs. George Deck (Bessie Bechtel) Springfield, members of the Victoria Class of the First Lutheran Church held a miscellaneous shower Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Walter Douthett, Chestnut St. Mrs. Deck was presented a miscellaneous array of lovely gifts by the ten guests present. Games and contests were enjoyed and a refreshment course was served by Mrs. Douthett late in the evening.

SOCIETY HOLDS THANK-OFFERING MEET

The annual thank-offering meeting of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First United Presbyterian Church was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Byford James, Fairground Road. The meeting was preceded by a dinner served at 6:30 o'clock.

Following the dinner Mrs. J. P. White gave an interesting and entertaining talk on her recent trip to the Holy Land.

Messrs. Clarence Brennan and Lawrence Hibbert, this city, and the Rev. David Powers, Dayton, formerly of this city, will leave Friday for South Bend, Ind., where they will witness the football game between Notre Dame and Navy Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morrill (Ethel Whitmer), Chicago, who were recently married, will be the guests Friday evening and Saturday of Mrs. Morrill's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Currie, W. Church St.

Mrs. Keith Johnson, Dayton, is the guest this week of Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Ungard, N. King St.

COUNTY TEACHERS WILL HEAR COLLEGE PROFESSOR TALK

"Student Guidance" will be the subject of the address by Dr. N. J. Neuberger of Wittenberg College, Springfield, at a meeting of the Greene County Teachers' Association Saturday in the auditorium at Spring Valley High School.

The meeting will open at 10 a. m. with the invocation delivered by the Rev. Ralph Knoop, pastor of the Spring Valley M. E. Church. Addresses by F. E. Reynolds, secretary of the Ohio Education Association, and W. E. Kershner, secretary of the Ohio Teachers' Association, will be given on the morning program. Luncheon will be served at noon by the Spring Valley High School.

The afternoon session convenes at 1 o'clock and from 1 until 1:30 o'clock a talk and demonstration on visual education will be given by Alan B. Twyman, Dayton. Following the demonstration Dr. Neuberger will address the teachers.

Music by the Spring Valley, Jefferson and Ross Schools, under the direction of Miss Donna Clare Shely, will be given between the addresses both in the morning and afternoon.

Officers of the teachers association are: president, H. D. Furst; vice president, R. E. Correll; secretary-treasurer, C. A. Dewar; members of the executive committee, Mrs. H. J. Fawcett, Mrs. Anna Protzman, Miss Carrie Rife and officers of the association.

POLICEMEN PATROL WALL ST. DISTRICT

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Fifty policemen patrolled the financial district today after a threatening letter was received by an official of the New York Stock Exchange.

Contents of the letter were not revealed but they were of sufficient alarm to concentrate the additional force of uniformed men and detectives in the section throughout the night.

The letter was written in a foreign language and was barely legible, according to police. The extra guard will be maintained until Police Commissioner Mulrooney decides whether it is the work of a crank or has some real significance.

NAMES REPUBLICAN WOMEN DIRECTORS

Miss Helen Dodds, county treasurer and chairman of the Republican women's organization in Greene County, is announcing the appointment of three women for the special task of directing the campaign among rural women, young women voters and colored women throughout the county.

Mrs. Grace B. Allen, Cedarville, has been named to direct the drive for votes among women in the rural districts; Mrs. D. A. Brewer, Yellow Springs, is entrusted with the work of getting the young women voters to the polls, and Mrs. Ida Shields, Xenia, will have charge of the campaign among colored women.

Members of the junior department of the First Presbyterian Sunday School will meet for rehearsal at the church Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The Junior department will present a biblical play at the Rally Day services, October 19.

Mrs. Anna Prugh Holmes, Bellbrook, was the guest Thursday of Mrs. R. R. Grieve, W. Church St.

The Ladies Aid Society of Trinity M. E. Church will meet at the church Tuesday afternoon at 1:45 o'clock. Women are asked to bring needles and thimbles and come prepared to sew. A good attendance of members is desired at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gifford, 133 S. Columbus St., are the parents of a son born at their home Thursday.

Mr. Junif Duvall, student at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, is a patient at McClelland Hospital, this city, where he is undergoing treatment.

Mr. Ralph Baldwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Baldwin, N. King St., freshman at Miami University, Oxford, has been chosen a member of the school's glee club. He also is soloist at the Memorial Presbyterian Church, Oxford.

Miss Emma F. Lyon, executive secretary of Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, who has been ill at her apartment on E. Church St., suffering from pleurisy, is now improving nicely.

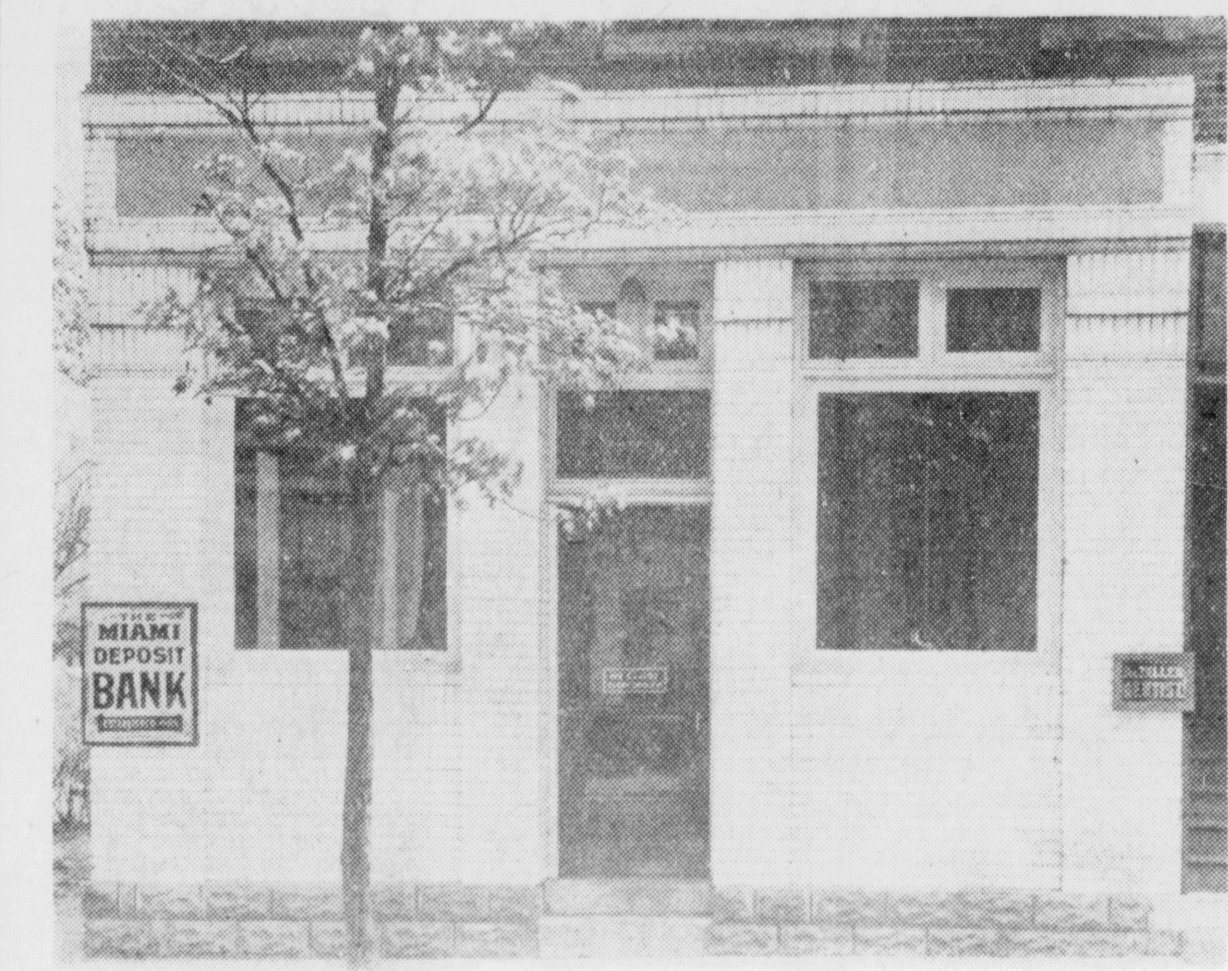

Mr. Albert Stattler and Miss Violet Dalton, Bellevue, Ky., spent Thursday here as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Jacobs, S. Galloway St.

Robert, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heifner, Ross Twp., who was seriously scalded Monday evening, is slowly improving.

Mrs. James Paulin and infant daughter, Florence Virginia, were removed Tuesday evening to their home on N. Galloway St., from McClelland Hospital.

Messrs. Fred Graham, William Graham, Lawrence Whittington and Fred McCurran, this city, left by motor Friday afternoon for South Bend, Ind., where they will attend the Notre Dame-Navy football game Saturday afternoon. They will return home Sunday.

TEARFUL RECEPTION AWAITS BANDITS HERE

MIAMI DEPOSIT BANK

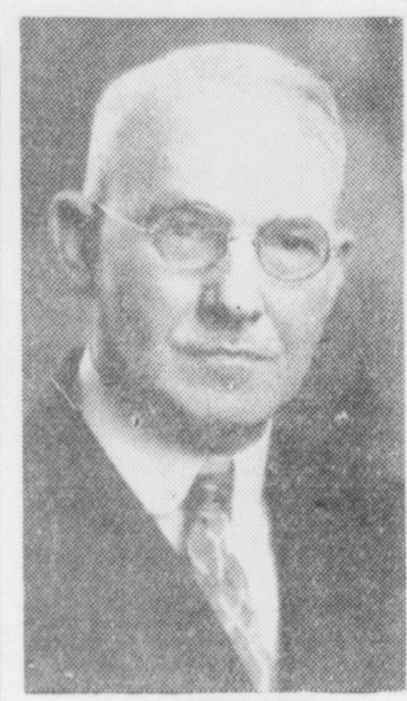

Bandits who invade the Miami Deposit Bank at Yellow Springs will have a crying good time and will leave—if they are able—with tears in their eyes.

The first federal gas and offensive system of protection against daylight bandits in Greene County has been installed in this financial institution.

In an emergency slight touches of foot triggers connected electrically with small button-like devices installed in the lobby will cause gas to spray out. It is claimed that advancing bandits will gasp and forget all thoughts of robbery due to the stinging sensation in their eyes.

Tear gas jets are in various parts of the building and are so hooked up that gas can be readily discharged when ever the need arises.

In view of the recent wave of bank robberies in this section of the state, the Yellow Springs bank sought the utmost protection available and after an investigation decided on the Federal system now installed. The installing was in charge of Edwin E. Mayer, engineer for the Pittsburgh firm. The system is used in many large throughout the bank, and has the effect of preventing any gun play on the part of the would-be bandit. He is also disturbed by the sensation the gas produces in his eyes and throat. Unable to operate successfully, the intruder seeks the outer air where he is readily identified by a red-eyed appearance.

The effect of the tear gas soon leaves a person, it is claimed, and customers and bank employees soon regain their composure in the fresh air outdoors.

The gas also counteracts the use of gas masks, the gas having a substance in it which fogs the glass on a mask.

Testimonials from other banks show the system has generally been successful in repelling bandits in attacks on all banks so equipped. P. M. Stewart is president of the Yellow Springs bank.

Gas equipment of the local police department and sheriff's office is obtained from the Pittsburgh company.

THREE CHOIRS TO PRESENT NUMBERS

The three choirs of the First Methodist Church will each present a special number at the regular church services next Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Orpha Hull, director, announces.

The adult choir will sing "Crown Him," by Heyfer, the junior choir will present, "Days of Youth" by Meredith and the children's choir's number will be "Jesus Lamb," by Ogden. The Misses Helen Ford and Helen Hurley will sing a duet, "How Excellent is Thy Name," by Anna Priscilla Risler. Miss Theda Downing, organist, will be the accompanist for the special numbers.

SCARLET FEVER HITS COUNTY. REPORT FOUR CASES IN XENIA

Six cases of scarlet fever in Xenia and Greene County have been reported to health officials. It was revealed Friday morning. Four of the cases are in Xenia city and the other two are in Fairfield. Authorities are not alarmed, however, as all the cases are of a mild nature.

The following homes have been quarantined in Xenia and Fairfield: Ralph C. Heaton, 430 S. Detroit St., Mrs. Anna Ringer, Elm St.; Lawrence E. Cline, Locust St., and George Connors, colored, Park St., in Xenia and Otto Taylor, Fairfield. Two Taylor children are suffering from the malady.

Health authorities feel that the infantile paralysis epidemic which was prevalent here for a number of weeks is checked as no new cases have been reported for several weeks. Besides the scarlet fever and paralytic there are no other contagious diseases in the city and county at present.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SAVING OTHERS—They reviled him, saying, If thou be the Son of God come down from the cross. He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him. He trusted in God; let him deliver him now, if he will have him: for he said, I am the Son of God.—Matthew 27:39-43.

STOCK MARKET BLUES

The stock market had an unusually long period of decline during the latter part of September. Perhaps some people are depressed by the reflection that this seemed to give of business prospects. If people are ever affected by the vagaries of the speculative element, they should consider the fact that these speculators do not give much attention to conditions some little distance ahead. What they are concerned about is the very immediate future.

If you could assure the conservative investor that certain securities would be higher next summer, he would gladly buy them now, and would not consider that eight months was long to wait for his property to gain value. The average speculator is different. He does not usually buy with conditions a year ahead in view. He wants to make money right off quick.

If he is told that substantial business recovery can not be expected until next summer, instead of buying securities like the conservative investor, he will be likely to sell them short, with the idea that people are going to become so discouraged by having to wait eight months for improvement that prices will go down.

The speculators make money only when the market moves. If they can not move it upward, a lot of them take hold to move it down. They can gather in profits, if they can only get it going one way or the other. Movements occurring in this way throw very little light on business conditions.

It is the very general opinion of business and banking authorities that we can look for a steady improvement from now on. It may not be rapid. It is well to remember that the principal thing from which business now suffers is fear and lack of confidence, and the American people are not going to be stalled very long by the fantastic creations of their imaginations.

THE "WHY" AND "HOW" OF SUNDAY

Sunday is a day of rest, D. Carl Yoder says. That adults need rest may be seen in the study of a child who has just started to school and is under a nervous strain so that at the end of the week, the child is completely worn out, easily excited and nervous.

Sunday is a day of social fellowship. When one is among strangers, he naturally writes letters to the home folks and friends because there is within a craving for social fellowship. The highest and best social fellowship is that provided by the church for the right use of Sunday.

Sunday is a day for service. The world is full of lonely, disappointed, suffering folks whose life would be changed by a friendly interest from someone who cares; it may be in a short time we shall be numbered among them.

Sunday is a day for the cultivation of the religious life. Sunday in its original intent is not a holiday but a holy day. We need holidays but we need even more days which will make our souls grow.

Sunday should be a day of gratitude to God. In the final analysis everyone is greatly indebted to God and ingratitude is nothing less than a mark of disrespect to God, the Father of all and the Giver of all good gifts.

THE WORSHIP OF BIGNESS

Some discussion has arisen over the question as to which is the largest city in the world, New York or London. The official population of Greater London is 7,864,000. It is claimed in New York, that if that city took in as much territory as London does, it would have over 3,000,000 people. As the residents of New York seem to pride themselves very much on population, they will no doubt assert this claim very vigorously.

After a city reaches a certain moderate size, does it gain anything through population growth? It becomes more expensive to live in such a place, and conditions become more crowded and uncomfortable. The ideal conditions of living are found in medium sized and small cities.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

VALUE

Born two thousand years ago the poet Virgil is still in the minds of educated people. Lately celebrations have been held in his honor. In Italy a garden filled with the plants and trees mentioned in Virgil's writings will be dedicated. Somebody says: Who reads Virgil? Who cares about Virgil? Many school boys and girls, if they remember him at all, remember him with grief. But don't worry about Virgil. He has a celebration in his honor and a garden planted for him nearly 2,000 years after his time. Value lasts. Good minds—even if they are few—take care of that.

LOOKING AT THE FACTS

Many worry about what Wickersham and his crime commission will or will not report. Congress will have the report in December. Some fear nothing will be said about prohibition. Some fear too much will be said. Let us hope everything will be said that ought to be said. Why dodge facts? Why not always be courageous enough to face them? Why should prohibition or anything else be excluded from an analysis of what ails this country?

POVERTY INDEED

Good for Prof. Hart, University of Wisconsin! Hart says the mental poverty of grown-up folks who think or do not think, there is cause for encouragement in the fact that in Chicago last year more than 50,000 persons were enrolled in evening school classes. Few of us are either too old or too dumb to learn. Many of us are too lazy.

ADULTS AWAKE

Speaking of grown-up folks who think or do not think, there is cause for encouragement in the fact that in Chicago last year more than 50,000 persons were enrolled in evening school classes. Few of us are either too old or too dumb to learn. Many of us are too lazy.

DID YOU READ YOUR SIX?

Figures show the average American reads six books a year—one every two months. The American public buys about two books per capita a year. We spend twenty times as much on automobile touring as on books. Indeed we spend more on greeting cards. Some could hardly visualize a world without books. But thousands, hundreds of thousands, live in a bookless world.

THE QUESTION BOX

Central Press Wash. Bureau

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

Will you please complete the quotation "Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone?"

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone; For the sad old earth must borrow its mirth, But has trouble enough of its own."

The author is Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and the name of the poem "Solitude."

Is an American born woman married to an alien in 1912, able to regain her citizenship?

By an act of congress, approved Sept. 22, 1922, it is provided that after that date the citizenship status of a married woman shall no longer follow that of her husband and that thereafter a married woman shall have the privilege of becoming naturalized on her own account.

Before Lindbergh

If it is true that Charles Lindbergh was not the first person to cross the Atlantic by airplane, who were the others, and when were the trips made?

The NC-4, American hydroplane, crossed from Trepassy, New Foundland, to Lisbon, Portugal, on May 16-17, 1919. The Vickers-Vimy biplane with the British aviators, Alcock and Brown, crossed from St. Johns, New Foundland, to Clifden, Ireland, June 14-15, 1919.

Luminous Paint

Is there a good recipe for luminous paint?

Luminous paint for use on paper may be made by dissolving ten parts (by weight) of pure gelatin in 40 parts of hot water, then adding one part of glycerine and thirty parts of phosphorescent powder. The latter is obtained by heating pure sulphide of calcium and mixing it with a small quantity of bismuth salt.

Dred Scott

What was the motive and decision in the Dred Scott case?

One Dred Scott, a slave, owned by Dr. Emerson of the regular army, a resident of Missouri, had in 1834 been taken by his owner into Illinois and later into what is now Minnesota, where slavery was prohibited. While on free territory Scott married and later with his wife and child was taken back to Missouri, where he sued for his freedom. The supreme court held (Curtis and McLean dissenting) that Scott was not a citizen, and therefore was not entitled to any standing in the courts. The full text of the decision, which aroused intense feeling, can be found in Volume 19 of Howard's "United States Reports."

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Gotham is in the throes of one of its periodic waves of moral indignation, with Tammany in the pillory.

This is an old act. As far back as any living New Yorker can remember the forces of sweetness and light have arisen, on occasion, to crush Tammany.

As one of the Braves put it the other day:

"This present trouble is a joke. The Tammany majority every election day, shows what the people think of such bunk."

A PHILOSOPHER

In this connection on the subject of good government in New York—hark to the words of the wisest politicians that ever lived. Said the Worthy Brother:

"When a man can do a thing and doesn't do it, that's because he doesn't want to do it. If you didn't want a rogue in office, there wouldn't be one; if a monstrous policy offended you, it would disappear. Your officials, whatever they may be, may at least claim you as their origin."

"If they are black, it's because you are black; and there's not one word of them, said in criticism that could not be said of you."

"A people—and that means you—gets invariably a government wed with its deserts. Be pure, and your government will be pure; be brave, it will have courage; be free and freedom will abide in your high places and descend therefrom to the rabble least among you. Be dogs, and you will have dog-government—a kennel, a collar, a bone to gnaw, and a chain to clink."

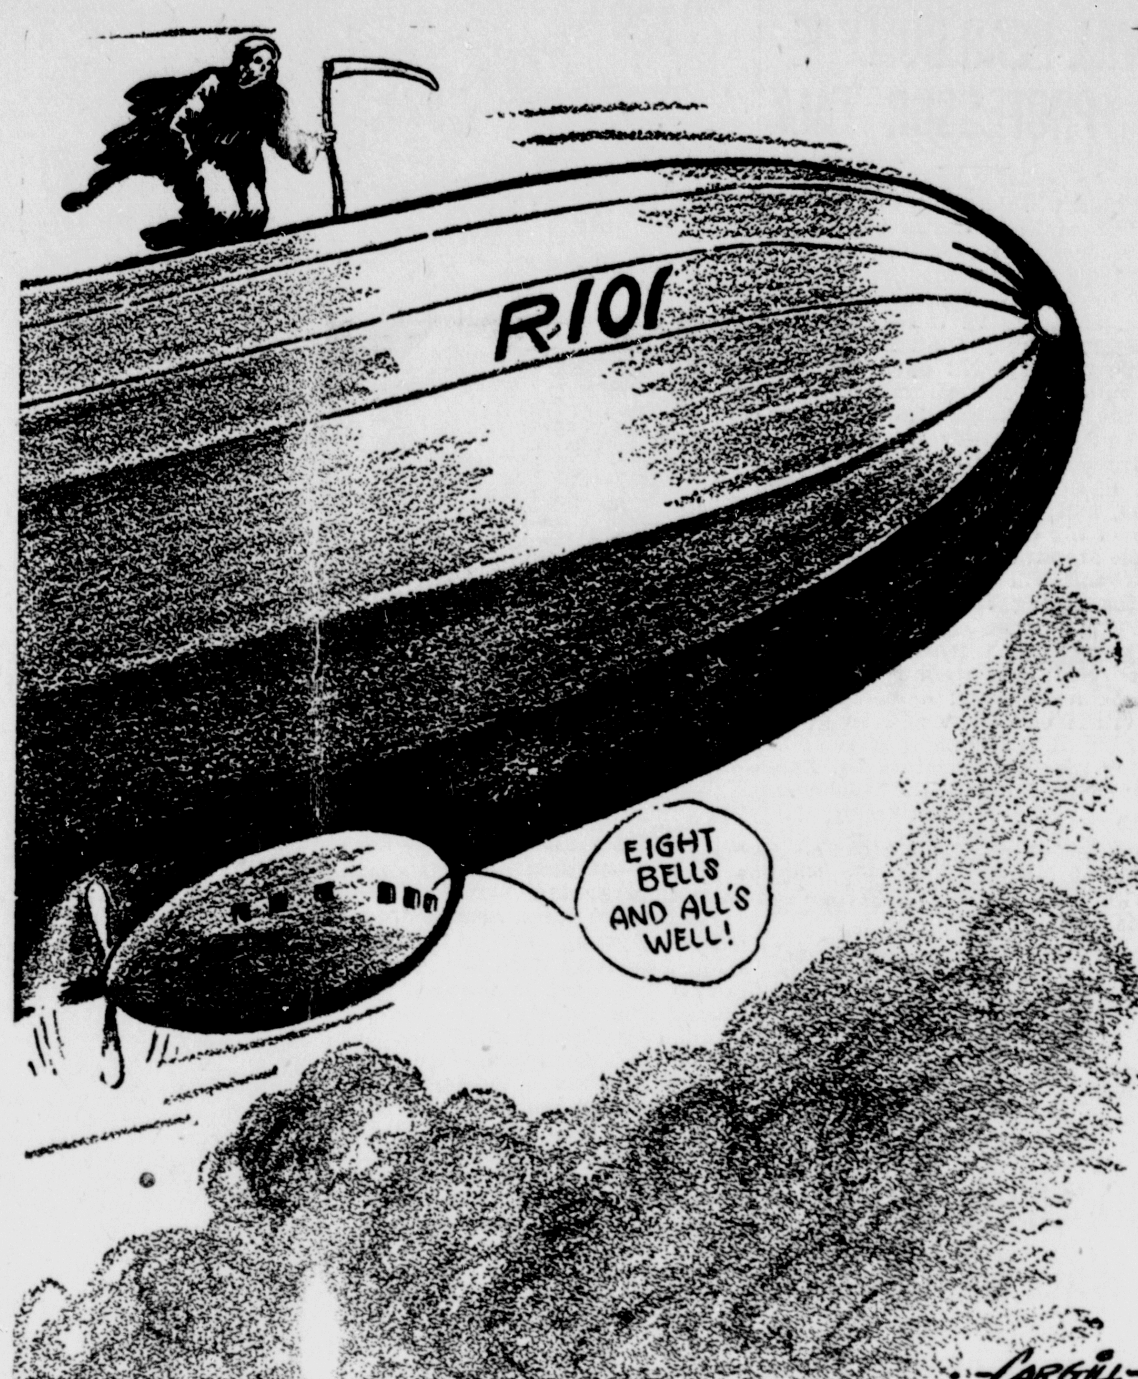

CITIZENS' CHANCE

The critic has given a true picture of many who sit in high places.

Are they slow, timid, greedy, dishonest? And you don't like it! Then Mr. Honest Citizen, make your stand.

Those officeholders will be anything, do anything you say. At your demand those pliant folk of place will sail to any compass point; or they will set a stay-sail and heave to, exactly as you, Mr. Honest Citizen—demand.

THE STOWAWAY

HEAVY PRIMARY EXPENDITURES THREATEN TO TIE UP SENATE MORE THAN EVER NEXT YEAR

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Illinois had to get along with only one U. S. senator for nearly two years after the late William B. McKinley's term expired in 1927. Pennsylvania was in a similar fix for half again as long following the expiration of George Wharton Pepper's term at the same time.

This, of course, was because the senate refused to accept Frank L. Smith's credentials as McKinley's successor and William S. Vare's as Pepper's, and their states had to wait while Smith and Vare fought for the seats they claimed—ultimately to be definitely excluded, however, on the ground that their nominations had cost too much, and that some of the money was tainted besides.

There have been occasions before when, due to one sort of a deadlock or another, a single senatorship has remained tied up for a couple of years, but having two of them hanging fire at once was a new thing, which caused a lot of talk, especially in Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Yet 1931 may see the beginning of a very much worse senatorial snarl than Illinois' and Pennsylvania's during 1927-28-29. At least half a dozen senate fights are readily conceivable, starting when the seventy-second congress meets and perhaps lasting longer than Smith's and Vare's.

The number will depend on what candidates win in November. Those who have spent large sums on their primary campaigns are sure to be challenged if elected, on presenting themselves for admission to the senate chamber.

If beaten at the polls, the cost of their nominations will not matter so much.

Present indications are that the hottest of the so-called senatorial slush fund investigating committee's reports will be those relating to primary expenditures in Colorado, Illinois, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Pep might be looked for in the committee's account of the trickery that has been employed in an attempt to prevent Senator George W. Norris' Nebraska renomination, were it not for the fact that "Uncle George" was renominated anyway—hence, what of it?

In several other states whence complaints were received of heavy pre-primary expenditures, the money-spending candidates failed to be nominated, despite their efforts—whereupon the investigations lost interest in them and turned to commonwealths where cash accomplished actual results.

In the case each, of Colorado, Illinois and West Virginia, according to evidence in the investigators' possession, it was the G. O. P. nomination that came high, and only in the event of the G. O. P. candidate's victory in November is the question of its cost likely to be raised. The Democratic contenders appear to have operated very economically, as political campaigning goes at the present time.

In Pennsylvania, senatorially speaking, it generally is reckoned that the G. O. P. candidate alone counts—that is to say, this year, Secretary to Labor James J. Davis, who is supposed to have invested a snug sum in shelving "Old Joe" Grundy.

In Massachusetts, from all appearances, fat bank rolls have been the rule among most senate aspirants, on both sides.

Proof that his nomination was mighty expensive does not necessarily disqualify a senator-elect, to be sure.

In few instances is a limit fixed, which he must not exceed.

Tennessee does, indeed, provide such a limit—$10,000—which explains why the controversy in that state is particularly warm, despite the circumstances that the sums mentioned in connection with the campaign there seem small in comparison with the amounts involved elsewhere.

Nevertheless, the senate is explicitly on record as considering $195,000 too much and this expenditure, incurred by Senator Truman H. Newberry a few years ago, is a mere fraction of the figures reached now.

But the thing which most seriously perturbs today's holders of disputed senate credentials is the senate's custom, established during the Smith and Vare fights, of refusing admission to members-elect until fully satisfied as to their eligibility.

Under the old system they were admitted immediately, after which, while they still could be expelled, any action against them required a two-thirds majority.

The newer method is to keep them out, for which a bare majority is sufficient, until every objection to seating them has been fully considered. It may be unconstitutional, as some folk insist, but there is nothing whatever that the United States supreme court can do about it; the senate makes its own rules—absolutely.

Doctor Recommends King's Rule

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I COMMENT to your attention the rules of life which King George of England is said to have framed for himself.

I quote the first four:

"Teach r. to be obedient to the rules of the game.

"Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentimentality, admiring the one and despising the other.

"Teach me neither to proffer nor to receive cheap praise.

"If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well-bred beast, that goes away to suffer in silence."

When these were made public a few weeks ago, the New Haven Journal Courier commented on rather disparagingly.

"Why should one be obedient to the rules of the game if the game is wrong?" it asked about the first one. But that first one seems infinitely pathetic to me, considering the really role His Majesty was called upon to play in life.

Lots of us think the game is wrong, but how would you like to see Babe Ruth take a tennis racket to the plate and whiff at the balls crying, "The game's all wrong, let's play it with rackets."

In my professional capacity it is the king's fourth rule which appeals to me most. Commenting on this the New Haven Journal-Courier says:

"Why should one suffer in silence if there is any balm in making a noise about it? (And there must be such balm, because more people we know do make a noise about suffering.)"

The "speaking of operations"

theme. But I wonder if people know how much they know more people talking of their illnesses. The king has the right dose—hardly anybody is interested in your troubles but yourself.

And why people will pick on the members of the poor, long suffering medical profession to tell their stories of gore and pain unto is the deepest mystery of all. Some woman who has had one operation finds that her neighbor on the train is a doctor and immediately treats him to a long dissertation on what her doctor said, and how if the thing had gone on a day longer it would have been too late, and what a wonderful personality her doctor had, and—it's no wonder her unhappy auditor takes refuge in the smoking room.

It's like the story of the man who was drowned in the Johnstown flood. When he got to heaven he was excited to give every graphic description of the rising in the valley. But his patriarch was bored and turned away.

"Who is that old guy?" asked the Johnstown.

"That," replied one of his new-found acquaintances, "is Noah."

Begin Missionary Work At Home

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

ONE OF THE most pathetic figures in the world is the young girl just blossoming into womanhood, who is called upon to "take mother's place" in the home.

The younger children, soon recovered from the effect of the bereavement, outwardly, at least, usually refuse to obey her or help her; the father, torn with his grief and added responsibilities, seldom realizes what it means for a young and inexperienced girl to run a home and "manage" her brothers and sisters. And if he does realize it, can't do much to help her.

Especially is it sad when the girl has to give up her cherished plans for going to school. A sense of injustice is added to her other burdens. The following letter is from such a girl:

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I'm a girl 18 years of age. My mother died two years ago and I'm left with the work to do. I gave up school in order to help my father. He doesn't know how it hurt to give up going to college. I had just graduated from high school two weeks before mother died."

"There are three children at home besides my father and I. My sister is 14 and my brothers eight and four. What do you think they should do to help? I let them sleep in the morning while I put up their lunches and get their breakfasts. They go off to school without helping at all. Today they had plenty of time, so my sister could wipe the dishes, but she wouldn't."

"I did a large washing today, and as soon as I finished I started canning. I was in the midst of canning when the children came home. Carl wanted something to eat, and when I couldn't get it right away he started swearing. He has an awful habit of swearing. I have tried so hard to break him. Jean does the same thing. I asked her to set the table tonight, but no 'Do it yourself,' was the reply I told her. But he says, 'Oh, let them go. They've been in school and need a little exercise.' He doesn't think what I've been through."

"I have friends, but by the time I'm through working it is so late and I'm tired enough to drop into bed. I want to do right, and it seems as if I should take my mother's place, but how I long to go to school. I wanted to be a missionary. I've cried myself to sleep and longed to be laid beside my mother and be comforted."

"A NERVOUS WRECK." You have my entire sympathy, dear, and I'm sorry we can't meet personally. It is natural for a young girl like you to want to have sweet times instead of all the work and worry of a house and the care of younger children. I think your father should command the 14-year-old to help somewhat, and work out with you a program of what they all should do to help.

Possibly you can remember when your mother was alive and you were in school that you did not always help her as much as you might have done. If you do it will make you more sympathetic with sister.

Don't command any of them to do anything. Ask them nicely, and don't scold if it isn't done, but do sweet things for them and show them that you love them and want them to love you.

Your missionary work is really made for you, and the most helpful thing is for you to look at it in that light and do it as cheerfully as possible. Your religion will show in your sweetness and patience with your brothers and sisters. Of course I don't expect you always to be the soul of amiability—that would be too much to expect of anyone in your trying situation.

But laugh when you feel like crying once in awhile. A keen sense of humor and disposition not to take things too seriously will help a lot. The children don't mean to be cruel and unreasonable. They probably miss their mother, too, and think it pretty hard that they have to be bossed by big sister. Try to set their point of view as well as your own. That will help. Talk things over with your father, showing him that you are trying to be his little helper, and win his co-operation.

No matter how many heathen you might have converted, they would never have given you the satisfaction that the winning of those right in your own home will do. They may not seem very appreciative now, but they will love and look up to you always. It's your chance to be a very real power in the world, dear.

Hot Towel Treatment Too Drastic

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: I have a large number of blackheads on my face, and I find it most difficult to eradicate them. I was advised to use hot towels on my face to open the pores, and then to remove the extraneous matter. Do you think this is a good plan?"

"Gracie." I personally think that hot towels are too drastic and too harsh a treatment for the tender skin of the face. If you steam and scald your face with hot towels, the muscle fibers of the skin will become weakened and the facial muscles will grow relaxed and flabby. The purpose of hot towels is to open the pores, so that the dirt that distends them may be more easily removed. You can accomplish this more safely by washing the face with warm water and soap, and then massaging the skin for a few minutes with an oil or cream. The lubricant will soften the skin and open the pores most effectively.

"Dear Miss Glad: Due to the excellent reducing instructions contained in your booklet, 'The New Figure,' I have succeeded in regaining my normal weight. However, there are wads of fat on my knees that I can't seem to remove. Do you know of any lotion that I might use to eliminate this fat?"

Mrs. E. W. Vigorous daily exercises will help to break up the fatty tissues on the knees.

Stand erect, hands on hips. Do a running step in place, lifting the knees as high as possible, toes pointed downward. Do not exhaust yourself in doing this exercise.

Stand erect, knee muscles taut. Put your weight on your left foot, and point the toe of the right foot downward. Keeping the knees muscles rigid, swing the right leg as high as you can. Do this ten times, and then reverse legs.

Stand erect, heels about an inch apart, toes pointing outward. Without moving the feet, tense the leg muscles, and slowly force the knees as close together as you can. Repeat this exercise 20 times.

To supplement these exercises, you may use a solution of eight ounces of alcohol into which two squares of camphor have been dissolved. Pat the lotion on the knees twice each day. It will help to expedite the removal of the fat. As this lotion is drying to the skin, it is advisable to apply a bit of cold cream to the knees after its use.

"Dear Miss Glad: My daily occupation requires that I remain on my feet almost the entire day. By the end of the day my feet ache terribly. What can I

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SAVING OTHERS—They reviled him, saying, If thou be the Son of God come down from the cross. He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him. He trusted in God; let him deliver him now, if he will have him: for he said, I am the Son of God.—Matthew 27:39-43.

STOCK MARKET BLUES

The stock market had an unusually long period of decline during the latter part of September. Perhaps some people are depressed by the reflection that this seemed to give of business prospects. If people are ever affected by the vagaries of the speculative element, they should consider the fact that these speculators do not give much attention to conditions some little distance ahead. What they are concerned about is the very immediate future.

If you could assure the conservative investor that certain securities would be higher next summer, he would gladly buy them now, and would not consider that eight months was long to wait for his property to gain value. The average speculator is different. He does not usually buy with conditions a year ahead in view. He wants to make money right off quick.

If he is told that substantial business recovery can not be expected until next summer, instead of buying securities like the conservative investor, he will be likely to sell them short, with the idea that people are going to become so discouraged by having to wait eight months for improvement that prices will go down.

The speculators make money only when the market moves. If they can't move it upward, a lot of them take hold to move it down. They can gather in profits, if they can only get it going one way or the other. Movements occurring in this way throw very little light on business conditions.

It is the very general opinion of business and banking authorities that we can look for a steady improvement from now on. It may not be rapid. It is well to remember that the principal thing from which business now suffers is fear and lack of confidence, and the American people are not going to be stalled very long by the fantastic creations of their imaginations.

THE "WHY" AND "HOW" OF SUNDAY

Sunday is a day of rest, D. Carl Yoder says. That adults need rest may be seen in the study of a child who has just started to school and is under a nervous strain so that at the end of the week, the child is completely worn out, easily excited and nervous.

Sunday is a day of social fellowship. When one is among strangers, he naturally writes letters to the home folks and friends because there is within a craving for social fellowship. The highest and best social fellowship is that provided by the church for the right use of Sunday.

Sunday is a day for service. The world is full of lonely, disappointed, suffering folks whose life would be changed by a friendly interest from someone who cares; it may be in a short time we shall be numbered among them.

Sunday is a day for the cultivation of the religious life. Sunday in its original intent is not a holiday but a holy day. We need holidays but we need even more days which will make our souls grow.

Sunday should be a day of gratitude to God. In the final analysis everyone is greatly indebted to God and ingratitude is nothing less than a mark of disrespect to God, the Father of all and the Giver of all good gifts.

THE WORSHIP OF BIGNESS

Some discussion has arisen over the question as to which is the biggest city in the world, New York or London. The official population of greater London is 7,864,000. It is claimed in New York, that if that city took in as much territory as London does, it would have over 20,000,000 people. As the residents of New York seem to pride themselves very much on population, they will no doubt assert this claim very vigorously.

After a city reaches a certain moderate size, does it gain anything through population growth? It becomes more expensive to live in such a place, and conditions become more crowded and uncomfortable. The ideal conditions of living are found in medium sized and small cities.

The WAY of the WORLD

VALUE

Born two thousand years ago the poet Virgil is still in the minds of educated people. Lately celebrations have been held in his honor. In Italy a garden filled with the plants and trees mentioned in Virgil's writings will be dedicated. Somebody says: Who reads Virgil? Who cares about Virgil? Many school boys and girls, if they remember him at all, remember him with grief. But don't worry about Virgil. He has a celebration in his honor and a garden planted for him nearly 2,000 years after his time. Value lasts. Good minds—even if they are few—take care of that.

LOOKING AT THE FACTS

Many worry about what Wickersham and his crime commission will or will not report. Congress will have the report in December. Some fear nothing will be said about prohibition. Some fear too much will be said. Let us hope everything will be said that ought to be said. Why dodge facts? Why not always be courageous enough to face them? Why should prohibition or anything else be excluded from an analysis of what ails this country?

POVERTY INDEED

Good for Prof. Hart, University of Wisconsin! Hart says the mental poverty of grown up and privileged persons who have stopped thinking is as serious as actual illiteracy. Too bad about people who can not read and write. We feel sorry for them. They miss much. But people who can read and write but won't take the trouble to think are somewhat worse than nothing.

ADULTS AWAKE

Speaking of grown-up folks who think or do not think, there is cause for encouragement in the fact that in Chicago last year more than 50,000 persons were enrolled in evening school classes. Few of us are either too old or too dumb to learn. Many of us are too lazy.

DID YOU READ YOUR SIX?

Figures show the average American reads six books a year—one every two months. The American public buys about two books per capita a year. We spend twenty times as much on automobile touring as on books. Indeed we spend more on greeting cards. Some could hardly visualize a world without books. But thousands, hundreds of thousands, live in a bookless world.

Central Press Wash. Bureau

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

Will you please complete the quotation "Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone?"

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone; For the sad old earth must borrow its mirth, But has trouble enough of its own."

The author is Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and the name of the poem "Solitude."

Citizenship

Is an American born woman, married to an alien in 1912, able to regain her citizenship?

By an act of congress, approved Sept. 22, 1922, it is provided that after that date the citizenship status of a married woman shall no longer follow that of her husband and that thereafter a married woman shall have the privilege of becoming naturalized on her own account.

Before Lindbergh

If it is true that Charles Lindbergh was not the first person to cross the Atlantic by airplane, who were the others, and when were the trips made?

The NC-4, American hydroplane, crossed from Trepassey, New Foundland, to Lisbon, Portugal, on May 16-17, 1919. The Vickers-Vimy biplane with the British aviators, Alcock and Brown, crossed from St. Johns, New Foundland, to Clifden, Ireland, June 14-15, 1919.

Luminous Paint

Is there a good recipe for luminous paint?

Luminous paint for use on paper may be made by dissolving ten parts (by weight) of pure gelatin in 40 parts of hot water, then adding one part of glycerine and thirty parts of phosphorescent powder. The latter is obtained by heating pure sulphide of calcium and mixing it with a small quantity of bismuth salt.

Dred Scott

What was the motive and decision in the Dred Scott case?

One Dred Scott, a slave, owned by Dr. Emerson of the regular army, a resident of Missouri, had in 1834 been taken by his owner into Illinois and later into what is now Minnesota, where slavery was prohibited. While on free territory Scott married and later with his wife and child was taken back to Missouri, where he sued for his freedom. The supreme court held that Scott was not a citizen, and therefore was not entitled to any standing in the courts. The full text of the decision, which aroused intense feeling, can be found in Volume 19 of Howard's "United States Reports."

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Gotham is in the throes of one of its sporadic waves of moral indignation, with Tammany in the pillory.

This is an old act. As far back as any living New Yorker can remember the forces of sweetness and Light have arisen, on occasion, to crush Tammany.

As one of the Braves put it the other day:

"This present trouble is a joke. The Tammany majority every election day, shows what the people think of such bunk."

A PHILOSOPHER

In this connection on the subject of good government in New York—hark to the words of the wisest politicians that ever lived. Said the Worthy Brother:

"When a man can do a thing and doesn't do it, that's because he doesn't want to do it. If you didn't want a rogue in office, there wouldn't be one; if a monstrous policy offended you, it would disappear. Your officials, whatever they may be, may at least claim you as their origin."

If they are black, it's because you are black; and there's not one word of them, said in criticism, that could not be said of you.

"A people—and that means you—gets invariably a government wed with its deserts. Be pure, and your government will be pure; be brave, it will have courage; be free and freedom will abide in your high places and abide therefrom to the rabble least among you. Be dogs, and you will have dog-government—a kennel, a collar, a bone to gnaw, and a chain to clink."

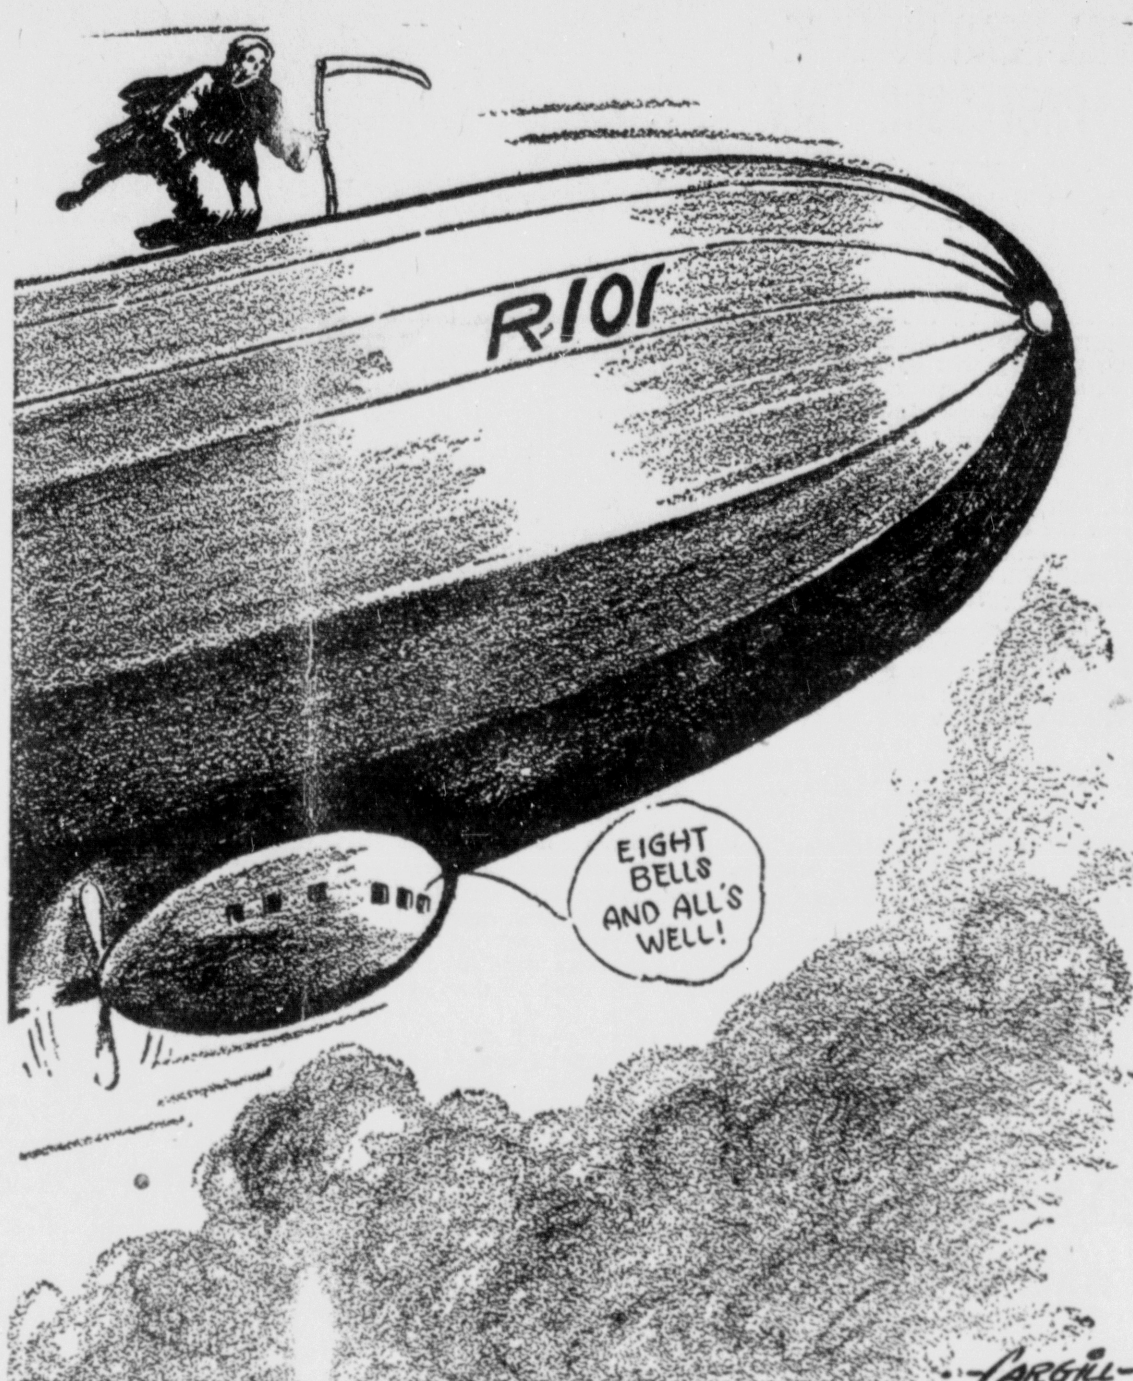

CITIZEN'S CHANCE

The critic has given a true picture of many who sit in high places.

Are they slow, timid, greedy, dishonest? And you don't like it? Then Mr. Honest Citizen, make your stand.

Those officeholders will be anything, do anything you say. At your demand those pliant folk of place will sail to any compass point, or they will set a stay-sail and leave to, exactly as you, Mr. Honest Citizen—demand.

THE STOWAWAY

HEAVY PRIMARY EXPENDITURES THREE TIMES AS MUCH AS IN 1927 TO TIE UP SENATE MORE THAN EVER NEXT YEAR

CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Illinois had to get along with only one U. S. senator for nearly two years after the late William B. McKinley's term expired in 1927. Pennsylvania was in a similar fix for half again as long following the expiration of George Wharton Pepper's term at the same time.

This, of course, was because the senate refused to accept Frank L. Smith's credentials as McKinley's successor and William S. Vare's as Pepper's, and their states had to wait while Smith and Vare fought for the seats they claimed—ultimately to be definitely excluded, however, on the ground that their nominations had cost too much, and that some of the money was tainted besides.

There have been occasions before when, due to one sort of a deadlock or another, a single senatorship has remained tied up for a couple of years, but having two of them hanging fire at once was a new thing, which caused a lot of talk, especially in Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Yet 1931 may see the beginning of a very much worse senatorial snarl than Illinois' and Pennsylvania's during 1927-28-29. At least half a dozen senate fights are readily conceivable, starting when the seventy-second congress meets and perhaps lasting longer than Smith's and Vare's.

The number will depend on what candidates win in November. Those who have spent large sums on their primary campaigns are sure to be challenged if elected, on presenting themselves for admission to the senate chamber.

If beaten at the polls, the cost of their nominations will not matter so much.

Present indications are that the hottest of the so-called senatorial slush fund investigating committee's reports will be those relating to primary expenditures in Colorado, Illinois, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Pepper might be looked for the trickiest of the committee's account if he were said to have been employed in an attempt to prevent Senator George W. Norris' Nebraska renomination, were it not for the fact that "Uncle George" was renominated anyway—hence, what of it?

In several other states where complaints were received of heavy money-spending candidates, the money-spending candidates failed to be nominated, despite their liberality—whereupon the investigators lost interest in them and turned to commonwealths where cash accomplished actual results.

In the case each, of Colorado, Illinois and West Virginia, according to evidence in the investigators' possession, it was the G. O. P. nomination that came high, and only in the event of the G. O. P. candidate's victory in November is the question of its cost likely to be raised. The Democratic contenders appear to have operated very economically, as political campaigning goes at the present time.

In Pennsylvania, senatorially speaking, it generally is reckoned that the G. O. P. candidate alone counts—that is to say, this year, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who is supposed to have invested a snug sum in shelving "Old Joe" Grady.

In Massachusetts, from all appearances, fat bank rolls have been the rule among most senate aspirants, on both sides.

Proof that his nomination was mighty expensive does not necessarily disqualify a senator-elect, to be sure.

In few instances is a limit fixed, which he must not exceed. Tennessee does, indeed, provide such a limit—$10,000—which explains why the controversy in that state is particularly warm, despite the circumstances that the sums mentioned in connection with the campaign there seem small in comparison with the amounts involved elsewhere.

Nevertheless, the senate is explicitly on record as considering $195,000 too much and this expenditure, incurred by Senator Truman H. Newberry a few years ago, is a mere fraction of the figures reached now.

But the thing which most seriously perturbs today's holders of disputed senate credentials is the senate's custom, established during the Smith and Vare fights, of refusing admission to members-elect until fully satisfied as to their eligibility.

Under the old system they were admitted immediately, after which,

THE NAUGHTY PRINCE

Slowly but surely the princess remembered her babyhood days.

"When I was a little larva I didn't have any legs," signed she. "No, nor any eyes. But I could hear every single thing that went on around me. Oh, how I used to hate everything and everybody, and many's the time I wished I'd never been born as I sat there in the pitch dark, listening, listening, listening! Now I have legs and I can walk; I have eyes and I can see. I have wings, too, and by and by, if I behave as a good princess should, I can fly. Oh, how happy am I!"

"Atta girl," remarked Busy, approvingly, forgetting that she was speaking to Her Royal Highness. But the Princess didn't hear, or if she did, she didn't care. She had something else to think about, for just at that moment up rushed Nurse, breathless and panting.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting, Princess, dear!" cried she. "But I have had a dreadful tussle with one of the young Princes. His naughty Royal Highness wouldn't mind, nor do a blessed thing I told him. He was determined to start straight for the open sky, and if ever he'd broken away from me, goodness knows what would have happened to him. Silly young thing, to start for the great unknown without waiting for directions! However, I managed to hold onto him until his bodyguard arrived. I tell you I was glad to deliver that Princeling into another's keeping."

"What's the matter with your claw?" demanded the Princess. Peter looked, and noticed that one of Nurse's claws hung limply by her side.

"I sprained it in the tussle!" explained Nurse. "Don't trouble your royal head about it, though. It will soon be better!"

while they still could be expelled, any action against them required a two-thirds majority.

The newer method is to keep them out, for which a bare majority is sufficient, until every objection to seating them has been fully considered. It may be unconstitutional, as some folk insist, but there is nothing whatever that the United States supreme court can do about it; the senate makes its own rules—absolutely.

Sweet Potato Casserole—Pare and quarter one large apple and one medium sweet potato for each person. Place a layer of sweet potato in the casserole, then a layer of apples, sprinkle with brown sugar. Repeat and place home-made sausage patties on top. Bake about one hour at 350.

Tomato Salad—Scoop out centers of tomatoes and fill with celery, cucumber and onion diced and cover all with mayonnaise.

Suggestions

Applesauce Cake

One and three-fourths cups cake flour, one teaspoon soda, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves, one-half cup butter, one cup sugar, one egg, well beaten, one cup raisins, cut fine; one cup nuts, cut fine; one cup hot flour, measure, add soda and seasoning and sift together several times. Cream the shortening, add sugar gradually, creaming all the while. When light and fluffy, add well beaten egg. Mix well. Add raisins and nut meats which have been mixed with a small portion of the flour. Next beat in the dry ingredients alternately with the apple sauce, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in a greased pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) one hour.

Caramelized Apples

Peel and core six apples. Make a thin syrup using one cup sugar, two cups water and four cloves. Put the apples into this syrup and cook until tender but not broken up. Remove to serving dishes. To the syrup add one-half cup sugar, one teaspoon butter and one tablespoon honey. Boil fast until syrup thickens. Pour over apples, and sprinkle with chopped nut meats.

Doctor Recommends King's Rule

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I COMMENT to your attention the rules of life which King George of England is said to have framed for himself.

I quote the first four:

"Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game.

"Teach me to distinguish between sentiment and sentimentality, admiring the one and despising the other.

"Teach me neither to proffer nor to receive cheap praise.

"If I am called upon to suffer, let me be like a well-bred beast, that goes away to suffer in silence."

When these were made public a few weeks ago, the New Haven Journal Courier commented on rather disparagingly.

"Why should one be obedient to the rules of the game if the game is wrong?" it asked about the first one. But that first one seems infinitely more to be considered the only rule His Majesty was called on to play in life.

Lots of us think the game is wrong, but how would you like to see Babe Ruth take a tennis racket to the plate and whiff at the balls crying, 'The game's all wrong, let's play it with rackets.'

In my professional capacity it is the king's fourth rule which appeals to me most. Commenting on this the New Haven Journal-Courier says:

"Why should one suffer in silence if there is any balm in making a noise about it? (And there must be some balm, because most people we know do make a noise about suffering.)"

The "speaking of operations" theme. But I wonder if people know how much they bore other people talking of their illnesses. The king has the right dope—hardly anybody is interested in your troubles but yourself.

And why people will pick on the members of the poor, long suffering medical profession to tell their stories of gore and pain into is the deepest mystery of all. Some woman who has had one operation finds that her neighbor on the train is a doctor and immediately treats him to a long dissertation on the things her doctor said, and how if the thing had gone on a day longer it would have been too late and what a wonderful personality her doctor had, and—it's no wonder her unhappy auditor takes refuge in the smoking room.

It's like the story of the man who was drowned in the Johnstown flood. When he got to the river he began to give every graphic description of the rising in the valley. But his patriarch was bored and turned away.

"Who is that old guy?" asked the Johnstowneer.

"That," replied one of his new-found acquaintances, "is Noah."

Begin Missionary Work At Home

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

ONE OF THE most pathetic figures in the world is the young girl just blossoming into womanhood, who is called upon to "take mother's place" in the home.

The younger children, soon recovered from the effect of the bereavement, outwardly, at least, usually refuse to obey her or help her; the father, torn with his grief and added responsibilities, seldom realizes what it means for a young and inexperienced girl to run a home and "manage" her brothers and sisters. And if he does realize it, he can't do much to help her.

Especially is it sad when the girl has to give up her cherished plans for going to school. A sense of injustice is added to her other burdens. The following letter is from such a girl:

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I'm a girl 18 years of age. My mother died two years ago and I'm left with the work to do. I gave up school to help my father. He doesn't know how it hurt to give up going to college. I had just graduated from high school two weeks before mother died.

"There are three children at home besides my father and I. My sister is 14 and my brothers eight and four. What do you think they should do to help? I let them sleep in the morning while I put up their lunches and get their breakfast. They go off to school with me, and I help my father. He doesn't know how it hurt to give up going to college. I had just graduated from high school two weeks before mother died.

"I did a large washing today, and as soon as I finished I started canning. I was in the midst of canning when the children came home. Carl wanted something to eat, and when I couldn't get it right away he started swearing. He has an awful habit of swearing. I have tried so hard to break him. Jean does the same thing. I asked her to set the table tonight, but no 'do it yourself,' was the reply I told dad, but he says, 'Oh, let them go. They've been in school and need a little exercise.' He doesn't think what I've been through.

"I have friends, but by the time I'm through working it is so late and I'm tired enough to drop into bed I want to do right, and it seems as if I should take my

Today's Recipes

Sweet Potato Casserole—Pare and quarter one large apple and one medium sweet potato for each person. Place a layer of sweet potato in the casserole, then a layer of apples, sprinkle with brown sugar. Repeat and place home-made sausage patties on top. Bake about one hour at 350.

Tomato Salad—Scoop out centers of tomatoes and fill with celery, cucumber and onion diced and cover all with mayonnaise.

Suggestions

Applesauce Cake

One and three-fourths cups cake flour, one teaspoon soda, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves, one-half cup butter, one cup sugar, one egg, well beaten, one cup raisins, cut fine; one cup nuts, cut fine; one cup hot flour, measure, add soda and seasoning and sift together several times. Cream the shortening, add sugar gradually, creaming all the while. When light and fluffy, add well beaten egg. Mix well. Add raisins and nut meats which have been mixed with a small portion of the flour. Next beat in the dry ingredients alternately with the apple sauce, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in a greased pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) one hour.

Al Simmons won the batting championship of the American League this season and great things were said as a matter of course expected of him in the World's Series.

And Simmons did not disappoint. He was the leading hitter for the A's during the series.

St. Louis pitchers who had never twirled against Al were probably somewhat amused when they saw his peculiar stance at the plate. Al has one of the most unorthodox batting poses of any hitter playing big league baseball and looks to be a sucker for a curve ball.

He is not, however, a sucker for any kind of a pitched ball as the St. Louis hurlers will now attest.

It used to be there was always one ranking star to whom the boys could point as an example of lifetime frustration in connection with World's Series play and, therefore, perforce, weep bitter tears over the unfortunate situation.

But nowadays fate is rapidly rectifying this great wrong and so this year it was not surprising to note that Frankie Fritsch, possibly baseball's best second baseman, whose all-around play was largely responsible for the meteoric rise of the Cardinals to the National League championship, now has the distinction of having played in the sixth World's Series in a major league career of eleven years.

In brief Mr. Fritsch, provided he survives the next seven or eight years, faces the possibility of equalling or bettering the record for World's Series longevity. The latter is held by none other than Mr. B. Ruth himself. He has seen action in no less than nine during his sixteen years of major league service.

Frankie did establish one World's Series record this year. He now has more hits to his credit in World's Series play than any other player.

Before giving up the subject of baseball once and for all this year we would like to mention the fact that Jimmy Fox, first baseman for the A's and hero of the fifth World's Series game, is a typical Connie Mack pupil. He has never played under any other major league manager.

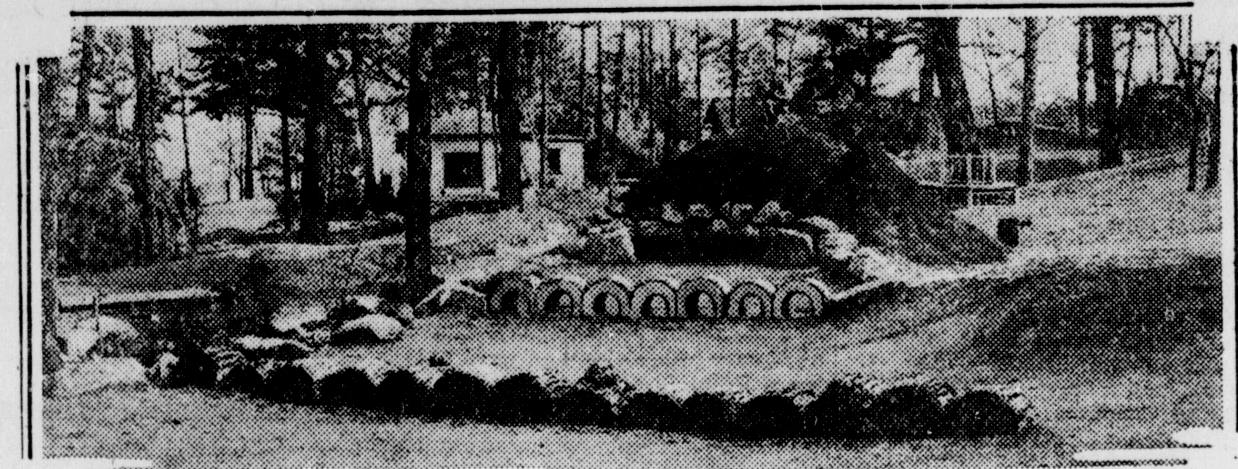

When Mack got him in 1925 from the Eastern Shore League he was a third baseman, outfielder and catcher. After using him as a catcher in 1925, 1926 and 1927, Mack converted him into a first baseman. He has never failed to hit over .300 for Mack since he has been with the team.

Among his qualifications are good looks, wealth, athletic ability and physique. He is six feet tall, weighs 200 pounds, and blew off the top of a spirometer—an instrument for measuring lung power.

PEE-WEE GOLF INVENTOR LAUGHS LAST

Hole No. 1 on the Fairland golf course, believed to be the first miniature course constructed in this country. The clubhouse can be seen in the background.

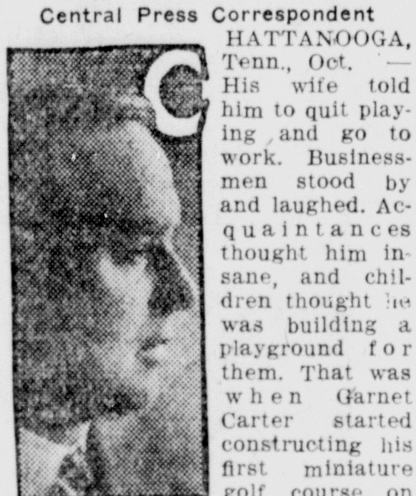

One of the large boulders on Lookout mountain around which the course was constructed.

One of the gnomes that grace the course.

By NELLIE KENYON

Garnet Carter, top of historic Lookout mountain near here in the fall of 1927.

Local residents were definitely sure that their one-time esteemed citizen had lost his mind when he began drilling holes through mountain boulders and placing in them ordinary pieces of sewer pipe, or hollow logs picked up on the mountain top.

Children were more strongly convinced that a beautiful place to play was being designed for their special benefit when the father of miniature golf began to fill the woods in front of Fairland Inn with stately models to represent mountain gnomes and other story-book characters.

The golf course was completed and players turned to it in the spring of 1928. Friends of the inventor who had laughed the loudest were the first to play it.

Today the federal government estimates there are 25,000 baby golf courses in the country. It also has been calculated that three million Americans indulge in this new sport every day. Humorists have characterized it "premature" or "half-pint" golf; cartoonists have poked fun at it, but the National Golf Association has recognized it as golf.

One doesn't make a fortune, literally, over night, but Garnet Carter did almost before he had spent the first few hundred he had made from his miniature courses. He sold out for a cool $200,000 to W. H. Robinson, of Pittsburgh, first vice president of a well known real estate company, and is now sitting back in his mountain lodge taking life easy.

The deal which was closed a few weeks ago, included one copyrighted "Tom Thumb" trade mark, a factory in Chattanooga valued at $10,000, and many patents applied for.

Carter retained the original dwarf links at Fairland on Lookout mountain and scrap books telling the story of the hurricane-like success of his dream. It is on the original midget course, which has cost the owner $40,000, that the first national miniature golf tournament will be played—Oct. 20, 21 and 22.

Garnet Carter hardly had finished his tiny course three years ago when friends all over the country began to clamor for one like it. They telephoned and wired for immediate shipments regardless of cost.

The first order came from a friend in Atlanta who paid $2,000 for a course built by Carter in his backyard with hammer and saw, and old pieces of sewer pipe and hollow logs collected by him.

By the end of the third week the Atlanta had his money back.

Nothing Carter could do would stop the wild demand for his baby golf courses. He told prospective customers they would have to pay $10,000 per course, but that didn't keep them away. "I was too busy with my real estate investments to bother with it," he commented.

The inventor soon found that the mania had spread to his own family when his father, J. I. Carter, persuaded him to install a course for his guests at the Lookout Mountain hotel. At the end of the first day the new amusement was more popular than the dining room.

The sport spread like a contagious disease into Florida. A former real estate man introduced miniature courses to Miami, and we soon found the people of Florida would put just like the people of Tennessee," said Carter.

W. S. Townsend, principal owner of a pump company at Fort Wayne, Ind., was the next customer. He couldn't wait to write Carter, but got him on the long-distance telephone and asked for the right to market the miniature courses in a national way.

"I told him to come to Chattanooga and I would sell him two," said Carter, who later was surprised when Townsend came. He left with the right to market Tom Thumb courses east of the Rocky mountains and north of the Mason-Dixie line, paying the Chattanooga an $100 for each course sold. This year's shipments totaled more than one thousand.

Asked how he was progressing with his new golf venture shortly before he sold out to Robinson, Carter said that he was making $1,000 a day, but had been figuring on consolidating the various plants and taking $1,000,000 worth of stock for his interest. However, he said he would prefer to sell out for cash.

"When Robinson approached me I told him I didn't see what he wanted with miniature golf in the real business, but he insisted upon bringing me to Chattanooga and giving me a check for $200,000 and I took it, and that's all there was to it." Prior to that, Carter had added $300,000 to his bank account from the baby courses.

"I want to see that fool who invented miniature golf," was almost the first thing Keneas Mountain Landis, high baseball commissioner, said upon stepping from his airplane on a recent trip to Chattanooga.

Despite all the ridicule of miniature golf, that has its origin on the historic battlefields of Lookout mountain, its inventor has no regrets nor does he experience any sleepless nights. "It does seem foolish," he agrees, "but it keeps the players out of mischief and gives them pleasure."

Mrs. Carter has long since forgiven her husband for his "playing," and now even permits him to tune in on the radio station broadcasting the latest song hit, "I've Gone Goofy Over Miniature Golf."

The Chattanooga is getting keen delight over the approaching national tournament, and is doing most of his time making in-course which is considered the premonition to his Fairland most difficult one in existence.

Betrothed to Duke

Princess Eudoxia, sister of King Boris of Bulgaria, is reported engaged to marry Duke Charles of Spoleto, son of Prince Aosta of Italy. The news closely followed the official announcement that King Boris and Princess Giovanna of Italy had been betrothed. In the two marriages foreign observers see the cementing of an alliance between the two countries.

CEDARVILLE CRIP PLED BEFORE FIRST HOME GAME SATURDAY

Illness of the two Boyers—Wendell and Walter—the first named being confined to bed threatened with an attack of pneumonia, and the latter just recovering from the effects of a severe cold, is expected to place Cedarville College's football team at a disadvantage in its first home game of the season against Urbana Junior College Saturday morning.

They are both regulars and line-men, Wendell playing a tackle position and Walter holding down a guard post.

Saturday morning's contest will begin at 10 o'clock with Baldy Compton, Wittenberg College, as referee and George Weimer as umpire.

It will be the season's opener for Urbana Junior College, which has not been represented by a football team for several years past. Urbana this well, however, has a husky squad with a line averaging about 170 pounds and the team is being coached by Rube Farmer, a former Wittenberg grid star, who has previously been Urbana High School's mentor.

Seven former Urbana High grid-men who are acquainted with Farmer's football system are on the college team and the Borstmen, with a record of two successive defeats this season administered by Cincinnati and Otterbein, are figuring upon stiff opposition Saturday.

Manly Perfection

At last—the perfect man! Harley Volkman, 18-year-old University of Kansas freshman, is rated 100 per cent in all things. Among his qualifications are good looks, wealth, athletic ability and physique. He is six feet tall, weighs 200 pounds, and blew off the top of a spirometer—an instrument for measuring lung power.

PEE-WEE GOLF INVENTOR LAUGHS LAST

Hole No. 1 on the Fairland golf course, believed to be the first miniature course constructed in this country. The clubhouse may be seen in the background.

One of the large boulders on Lookout mountain around which the course was constructed.

One of the gnomes that grace the course.

By NELLIE KENYON

HATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 9.—His wife told him to quit playing and go to work. Businessmen stood by and laughed. Acquaintances thought him insane, and children thought he was building a playground for them. That was when Garnet Carter started constructing his first miniature golf course on top of historic Lookout mountain near here in the fall of 1927.

Local residents were definitely sure that their one-time esteemed citizen had lost his mind when he began drilling holes through mountain boulders and placing in them ordinary pieces of sewer pipe, or hollow logs picked up on the mountain top.

Children were more strongly convinced that a beautiful place to play was being designed for their special benefit when the father of miniature golf began to fill the woods in front of Fairland Inn with statutory modeled to represent mountain gnomes and other story-book characters.

The golf course was completed and players turned to it in the spring of 1928. Friends of the inventor who had laughed the loudest were the first to play it.

25,000 Courses
Today the federal government estimates there are 25,000 baby golf courses in the country. It also has been calculated that three million Americans indulge in this new sport every day. Humorists have characterized it "premature" or "half-pint" golf; cartoonists have poked fun at it, but the National Golf Association has recognized it as golf.

One doesn't make a fortune, literally, over night, but Garnet Carter did almost before he had spent the first few hundred he had made from his miniature courses. He sold out for a cool $200,000 to W. H. Robinson, of Pittsburgh, first vice president of a well known real estate company, and is now sitting in his mountain lodge taking life easy.

The deal which was closed a few weeks ago, included one copyrighted "Tom Thumb" trade mark, a factory in Chattanooga valued at $10,000, and many patents applied for.

Carter retained the original dwarf links at Fairland on Lookout mountain and scrap books telling the story of the hurricane-like success of his dream. It is on the original midsize course, which has cost the owner $30,000, that the first national miniature golf tournament will be played—Oct. 20, 21 and 22.

Garnet Carter hardly had finished his tiny course three years ago when friends all over the country began to clamor for one like it. They telephoned and wired for immediate shipments regardless of cost. The first order came from a friend in Atlanta who paid $2,000 for a course built by Carter in his backyard with hammer and saw, and old pieces of sewer pipe and hollow logs collected by him.

By the end of the third week the Atlanta had his money back. Nothing Carter could do would stop the wild demand for his baby golf courses. He told prospective customers they would have to pay $10,000 per course, but that didn't keep them away. "I was too busy with my real estate investments to bother with it," he commented.

CEDARVILLE CRIPPLED BEFORE
FIRST HOME GAME SATURDAY

Illness of the two Boyers—Wendell and Walter—the first named being confined to bed threatened with an attack of pneumonia, and the latter just recovering from the effects of a severe cold, is expected to place Cedarville College's football team at a disadvantage in its first home game of the season against Urbana Junior College Saturday morning.

They are both regulars and line-men, Wendell playing a tackle position and Walter holding down a guard post.

Saturday morning's contest will begin at 10 o'clock with Baldy Compton, Wittenberg College, as referee and George Welmer as umpire.

It will be the season's opener for Urbana Junior College, which has not been represented by a football team for several years past. Urbana this will, however, has a husky squad with a line averaging about 170 pounds and the team is being coached by Rube Farmer, a former Wittenberg grid star, who has previously been Urbana High School's mentor.

Seven former Urbana High grid-ders who are acquainted with Farmer's football system are on the college team and the Borstmen, with a record of two successive defeats this season administered by Cincinnati and Otterbein, are figuring upon stiff opposition Saturday.

Coach Marvin Borst has been concentrating on a forward passing offense in practice sessions this week and straight football methods failing, the Yellow-Jackets are expected to take to the air in quest of their initial victory.

Cedarville wins third grid battle from Lanier twp.

Staging a comeback in the last half after trailing 7 to 0 at the end of the first two periods, Cedarville High School's small but mighty football eleven registered its third straight grid victory this season by flattening Lanier Twp. High School grid-ders, 9 to 7 on the Cedarville gridiron Thursday afternoon.

Blocked punts paved the way for a safety and touchdown scored by Cedarville in the second half, while a recovered fumble was responsible for Lanier's marker in the first quarter.

Early in the first period Cedarville fumbled on its own eighteen-yard line and a Lanier player recovered. Lanier then bucked its way across the goal line and the extra point was added from placement. Play during the remainder of the half was about even.

In the third quarter Cedarville paraded down the field but lost the ball on downs near the Lanier goal line. Lanier attempted to kick out of danger but Smith, midline colored guard, sifted through and blocked the ball rolling out of bounds in the end zone. This gave Cedarville a safety and two points.

In the fourth quarter Cedarville advanced the ball no fewer than four times to within the shadow of the Lanier goal and each time a scoring punch was lacking. In the last time Coulter, center, blocked a Lanier punt and Flatter, right tackle, recovered the ball behind the goal line for the winning touchdown. Peterson, fullback, bucked over for the additional point.

With the exception of about two minutes the play all during the second half was in Lanier territory. Buckner, quarterback, and Peterson, fullback, both colored boys were the most consistent ground gainers for Cedarville.

The Cedarville eleven is still undefeated, having also beaten the Cedarville College reserves, 13 to 0 and Kings Creek High School, 26 to 0. Score by periods:

Lanier Twp.	7	0	0	7
Cedarville	0	0	2	7-9

THRILL MARRIAGE LEADS INTO COURT; OTHER COURT NEWS

That her husband told her after their marriage that he married her simply for a thrill and that he never loved her and did not expect to establish a home for her are the allegations made by Zora Daugherty in a suit for divorce from Wilbur Daugherty, on file in Common Pleas Court.

The plaintiff charges gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty and declares she returned to her own home last September 1. She asks to be restored to her maiden name of Lucas. They were married April 8, 1930.

ACCOUNTING SOUGHT
An injunction suit, seeking an accounting and equitable relief, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Mamie John against John H. Frye. F. L. Johnson is the plaintiff's attorney.

JUDGMENT AWARDED
John T. Harbino, Jr., has recovered the following cognovit note judgment in Common Pleas Court; against Theodore C. Georgi and Elizabeth R. Georgi, $157.25; against John Henry, $210.75; against Max Dooley and Hazel Dooley, $19.70.

Ralph Fulton has been awarded a cognovit note judgment for $211.24 against H. M. Davidson.

WINS JUDGMENT
A judgment for $389.52, due on an account for materials furnished and labor performed, has been awarded in Common Pleas Court in favor of the Greene County Lumber Co. against J. H. Jones. The court decided the $6,125 mortgage lien of The Home Building and Savings Co. is the best lien in the matter with the plaintiff having the second best lien.

APPROVE SALE
Sale of property to Elmer E. Kline for $8,100 has been confirmed in the case of The Peoples Building and Savings Co. against Harry F. Frahn and others in Common Pleas Court. Since proceeds of the sale are insufficient by $118.32 to pay the plaintiff's claim in full, the court ordered the plaintiff to recover this amount from Frahn.

DENY NEW TRIAL
Overruling the defendant's motion for a new trial, Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy has authorized Harry Cross, as administrator of the estate of Virginia Cross, deceased, to recover from Walter Young, Dayton, $3,000, the amount of damages recently awarded by a jury.

DISMISS SUIT
Having been settled by payment of the plaintiff's claim, the case of John T. Harbino, Jr. against William C. Shade and others has been ordered dismissed in Common Pleas Court.

Customs Court

Because he enjoys poring over tariff problems as much as reading a gripping novel, Representative David H. Kincheloe, Democrat, of Kentucky, gladly relinquishes his congressional seat to become a member of the U. S. customs court.

MANNERS

A story is told of our present Secretary of the Interior, Lyman Wilbur, who, while a professor at Leland Stanford University, assigned to his students the task of writing an essay on "Manners."

A would-be wit of the class arose and hesitantly asked what kind of manner the professor meant—good or bad?

"You may discuss whatever kind you are most familiar with," was Professor Wilbur's quick response.

RUTH CHATTERTON

Made her "drawing room" debut in a New York apartment, Dec. 24th. Thank her mother. And her father.

Decided to become an actress five minutes before she played her first part. Was fourteen and just young enough to accept a "dare" during Easter vacation from Mrs. Hastings' School on the Hudson. Is still playing "hooky."

Appeared with Milton Sills at the age of 16. Eight years ago, when she was starred on Broadway with Henry Miller in "La Tendresse," an unknown Englishman was included in the supporting cast. Today, he is her next door neighbor at Malibu Beach. His name is Ronald Colman.

MANY "IFS"
Claims there were more "ifs" to her screen career than to Kipling's poem. Thus: "If" she hadn't married Ralph Forbes, she might never have gone to Hollywood to co-star with him in "The Green Hat"—"if" she hadn't gone to Hollywood, she might never have met Emil Jannings—"if" she hadn't met Emil Jannings, she might never have appeared with him in "Sins of the Fathers"—and "if" she hadn't appeared in "Sins of the Fathers," she might never have been a film star of "Paramount"—important—or the subject of this article.

Likes music and the mental stimulus of fine minds better than anything else she can think of.

Adores Colonial houses, evening clothes, being extravagant about books, the Wagnerian cycle, hoboes, black and white, lanes, traveling in style, French, duck trousers, Vanity Fair, fans, the sea, "Mary Rose," early American antiques and her mother-in-law.

Hates jewelry, idle gossip, large parties, vulgarity and parlor talk in a drawing room.

Hates Maurice Chevalier and Gloria Swanson her favorite players. And Sydney Howard and Vincent Lawrence her favorite playwrights.

TO WRITE MEMOIRS
Would like to write a book of memoirs some day. Has met practically all the leading personalities of the day with the possible exception of Bernard Shaw and Judge Crater.

Prizes among her possessions gifts from Schumann-Heink, letters from Sir James Barrie and a dedicated poem by George Sterling.

Hasn't saved a single scrapbook of her career. Wants to be spared from being the kind of actress who continually lives in the "past."

Is sentimental about her husband and "Simon," her Great Dane; "Belinda," her Sealyham Setter, and "Dvald," her Persian cat.

Doesn't like to know anything about the private lives of people in the public eye. Which explains why she never divulges information concerning her own.

Had to eat so much tapoca pudding when she was a little girl she omits it from her menu now. Has only tasted corn beef once and is still trying to summon up enough courage to tackle a parsnip.

When she hasn't a picture in production, likes to stay up late. When she is working, is always in bed by eleven o'clock. Didn't have to marry a Lord to become a "Lady."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The senior girls held their monthly election last week and chose as their officers for the month of October: Frances Beal, president; Jane Mussetter, vice president; Betty Liddle, secretary; and Josephine Beals, treasurer. The girls are planning to give a market Saturday, October 18. The place is undecided. The girls are seeking funds so that they may sponsor the annual senior girls football banquet at the close of the season.

The senior class held a special meeting Tuesday noon to decide about getting machines to go to Springfield Friday. Several members responded and it is the intention of school officials that the whole class attend it at all possible. Plans for the senior carnival were also discussed. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the senior special sale to be held Thursday afternoon. It was decided to discuss further plans for a Cen-Sen at the next class meeting. The seniors will end their candy sales in the hall this Friday and the sophomores will begin next Monday.

The junior high school football team under the direction of Coach Patterson traveled out to the O. S. and S. O. Home Tuesday evening for a practice game with the junior team of the Home and was handed a neat setback. The "Little Bucs" did not meet up to expectations but are counted on for a better showing Friday against the Troy junior team.

The weekly educational picture shows were given in the auditorium Wednesday afternoon before the entire student body. They were very interesting and were enjoyed by all present.

Miss Sandoe, of the Greene

County Library, talked to the students of the different English classes Wednesday and explained and proved to be a big help to them ways to use the library students.

THRILL MARRIAGE LEADS INTO COURT; OTHER COURT NEWS

That her husband told her after their marriage that he married her simply for a thrill and that he never loved her and did not expect to establish a home for her are the allegations made by Zora Laugherty in a suit for divorce from Wilbur Laugherty, on file in Common Pleas Court.

The plaintiff charges gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty and declares she returned to her own home last September 1. She asks to be restored to her maiden name of Lucas. They were married April 9, 1930.

ACCOUNTING SOUGHT
An injunction suit, seeking an accounting and equitable relief, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Mamie John against John H. Frye. F. L. Johnson is the plaintiff's attorney.

JUDGMENT AWARDED
John T. Harbino, Jr., has recovered the following cognovit note judgment in Common Pleas Court; against Theodore C. Georgi and Elizabeth R. Georgi, $157.25; against John Henry, $210.75; against Max Dooley and Hazel Dooley, $19.70.

Ralph Fulton has been awarded a cognovit note judgment for $211.24 against H. M. Davidson.

WINS JUDGMENT
A judgment for $389.62, due on an account for materials furnished and labor performed, has been awarded in Common Pleas Court in favor of the Greene County Lumber Co. against J. H. Jones. The court decided the $6,125 mortgage lien of The Home Building and Savings Co. is the best lien in the matter with the plaintiff having the second best lien.

APPROVE SALE
Sale of property to Elmer E. Kline for $8,100 has been confirmed in the case of The Peoples Building and Savings Co. against Harry F. Frahn and others in Common Pleas Court. Since proceeds of the sale are insufficient by $118.32 to pay the plaintiff's claim in full, the court ordered the plaintiff to recover this amount from Frahn.

DENY NEW TRIAL
Overruling the defendant's motion for a new trial, Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy has authorized Harry Cross, as administrator of the estate of Virginia Cross, deceased, to recover from Walter Young, Dayton, $3,000, the amount of damages recently awarded by a jury.

DISMISS SUIT
Having been settled by payment of the plaintiff's claim, the case of John T. Harbino, Jr. against William C. Shade and others has been ordered dismissed in Common Pleas Court.

Customs Court

Because he enjoys poring over tariff problems as much as reading a gripping novel, Representative David H. Kinchloe, Democrat, of Kentucky, gladly relinquishes his congressional seat to become a member of the U. S. customs court.

Wit and Wisdom

MANNERS

A story is told of our present Secretary of the Interior, Lyman Wilbur, who, while a professor at Leland Stanford University, assigned to his students the task of writing an essay on "Manners."

A would-be wit of the class arose and hesitantly asked what kind of manner the professor meant—good or bad?

"You may discuss whatever kind you are most familiar with," was Professor Wilbur's quick response.

Star Gazing

Made her "drawing room" debut in a New York apartment, Dec. 24th. Thank her mother. And her father.

Decided to become an actress five minutes before she played her first part. Was fourteen and just young enough to accept a "dare" during Easter vacation from Mrs. Hastings' School on the Hudson. Is still playing "hooky."

Appeared with Milton Sillis at the age of 16. Eight years ago, when she was starred on Broadway with Henry Miller in "La Tendresse," an unknown Englishman was included in the supporting cast. Today, he is her next door neighbor at Malibu Beach. His name is Ronald Colman.

MANY "IFS"
Claims there were more "ifs" to her screen career than to Kipling's poem. Thus: "If" she hadn't married Ralph Forbes, she might never have gone to Hollywood to co-star with him in "The Green Hat"—"if" she hadn't gone to Hollywood, she might never have met Emil Jannings—"if" she hadn't met Emil Jannings, she might never have appeared with him in "Sins of the Fathers"—and "if" she hadn't appeared in "Sins of the Fathers," she might never have been a film star of "Paramount" important—or the subject of this article.

Likes music and the mental stimulus of fine minds better than anything else she can think of.

Adores Colonial houses, evening clothes, being extravagant about books, the Wagnerian cycle, hoboes, black and white, lanes, traveling in style, French, duck trousers, Vanity Fair, fans, the sea, "Mary Rose," early American antiques and her mother-in-law.

Hates jewelry, idle gossip, large parties, vulgarity and parlor talk in a drawing room.

Ranks Maurice Chevalier and Gloria Swanson her favorite players. And Sydney Howard and Vincent Lawrence her favorite playwrights.

Prizes among her possessions gifts from Schumann-Heink, letters from Sir James Barrie and a dedicated poem by George Sterling. Hasn't saved a single scrapbook of her career. Wants to be spared from being the kind of actress who continually lives in the "past."

Is sentimental about her husband and "Simon," her Great Dane; "Belinda," her Sealyham Setter, and "Dvald," her Persian cat.

Doesn't like to know anything about the private lives of people in the public eye. Which explains why she never divulges information concerning her own.

Had to eat so much tapoca pudding when she was a little girl she omits it from her menu now. Has only tasted corn beef once and is still trying to summon up enough courage to tackle a parsnip.

When she hasn't a picture in production, likes to stay up late. When she is working, is always in bed by eleven o'clock.

Didn't have to marry a Lord to become a "Lady."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The senior girls held their monthly election last week and chose as their officers for the month of October: Frances Beal, president; Jane Mussetter, vice president; Betty Liddle, secretary; and Josephine Beals, treasurer. The girls are planning to give a market Saturday, October 18. The place is undecided. The girls are seeking funds so that they may sponsor the annual senior girls football banquet at the close of the season.

The senior class held a special meeting Tuesday noon to decide about getting machines to go to Springfield Friday. Several members responded and it is the intention of school officials that the whole class attend if at all possible. Plans for the senior carnival were also discussed. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the senior special sale to be held Thursday afternoon. It was decided to discuss further plans for a Cen-Sen at the next class meeting. The seniors will end their candy sales in the hall this Friday and the sophomores will begin next Monday.

The junior high school football team under the direction of Coach Patterson traveled out to the O. S. and S. O. Home Tuesday evening for a practice game with the junior team of the Home and was handed a near setback. The "Little Bucs" did not meet up to expectations but are counted on for a better showing Friday against the Troy Junior team.

The weekly educational picture shows were given in the auditorium Wednesday afternoon before the entire student body. They were very interesting and were enjoyed by all present.

Miss Sandoe, of the Greene

County Library, talked to the students of the different English classes Wednesday and explained to them ways to use the library students.

Mother, are you tempted to think your work insignificant and your round of daily duties trivial?

Do those engaged in "public work" seem to you to be living a fuller life?

Your calling is as great as you will make it.

Remember that Jesus needed a mother's influence, that He was subject to His mother and that by coming into a full grown man but as a helpless babe, He showed that a right childhood prepares for a sound manhood. Strong Christian lives are seldom built on faulty early training.

THE NEED OF THE CHURCH

Professor W. A. Brown says, "There is a need of a comradeship at once human and divine. As a human society, the church enlarges our sympathy and reinforces our power by uniting us with those who have followed Jesus before us or will follow Him after us."

As a divine creation it transmits God's revelation in Jesus from generation to generation, makes vivid the consciousness of God's presence by common worship and interprets to individuals and to nations his purpose for mankind."

KAISER LAUNDRY

Eight days after his birth, the child Jesus was circumcised and on the fortieth day after the nativity, the child was presented in the temple for the rite of purification; here is a picture for an artist—humble peasants with the poor man's offering, an inspired old man with the child Jesus in his arm and the still older matron.

V. 25. "And behold there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon; and this man was righteous and devout and looking for the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Spirit was upon him."

Simeon obeyed the outward commandments which made him righteous; he was pious, prayerful and worshipful which made him devout. The secret of his being devout and righteous was in the fact that the Holy Spirit was upon him.

V. 26. "And it had been revealed unto him by the Holy Spirit, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ." When one looks for the Christ, it is then He may be found. Simeon's mind was so finely spiritualized that it was sensitive to the Holy Spirit's touch.

V. 27. "And he came in the Spirit into the temple; and when he saw that he might do concerning parents brought in the child Jesus him after the custom of the law." Simeon though devout, did not give up his habit of church attendance. We never know what great blessing we shall receive when we go in the Spirit into the sanctuary. Parents should recognize God's right to their children and should dedicate them to the Lord in some way that will tie up the child to the fact that he belongs to God.

Vs. 28-32. "Then he received him into his arms and blessed God and said, Now lettest thou thy servant depart, Lord, according to thy word, in peace; for mine eyes have seen thy revelation which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples; a light for revelation to the Gentiles and the glory of thy people Israel." Simeon had reached the climax of his life and his soul burst forth in song. The first item in the song was salvation, for salvation is the radical need of humanity; Simeon saw salvation for all people. Any attempt to narrow the church of Christ to any particular class is a sin against the whole spirit of his gospel.

V. 33. "And his father and mother were marveling at the things which were said by the child."

which were spoken concerning him." A larger Christ was revealed to Joseph and Mary by the saint Simeon. A growing Christian finds a larger Christ.

V. 34. "And Simeon blessed them and said unto Mary, his mother, behold this child is set for the falling and rising of many in Israel; and for a sign which is spoken against." The Christ is seen by Simeon as the stone on which some fall and are bruised (Luke 20:18) while others plant their foot on it and rise to a higher life.

V. 35. "Yea and a sword shall pierce through thine own soul; that thoughts out of many hearts may be revealed." Mary had to suffer the heartaches of her Son, despised, rejected, crucified. The word progresses through sacrifices and sufferings and many mothers are pierced with the sharpest swords. The greater the crown that is ever won, the heavier the cross that must first be borne.

Vs. 36, 37. "And there was one Anna, a prophetess and she had been a widow even unto fourscore and four years who departed not from the temple, worshipping with fastings and supplications night and day." Anna made much of worship in the temple, ever having her eyes turned heavenward; she was spiritually attuned and therefore saw spiritual things; if we are of a worldly spirit, we shall see only worldly things and shall miss seeing Christ.

V. 38. "And when they had accomplished all things that were according to the law of the Lord, they returned unto Galilee, to their own city Nazareth." Matthew inserts many events which Luke omits—the return to Bethlehem, the visit of the magi, the flight into Egypt and the return. Jesus was soon to begin his life work, having been given to religious training common in his day. His early worship with Joseph and Mary was fundamental.

W. V. Sharp, Pastor

Mother, are you tempted to think your work insignificant and your round of daily duties trivial?

Do those engaged in "public work" seem to you to be living a fuller life?

Your calling is as great as you will make it.

Remember that Jesus needed a mother's influence, that He was subject to His mother and that by coming not as a full grown man but as a helpless babe, He showed that a right childhood prepares for a sound manhood. Strong Christian lives are seldom built on faulty early training.

THE NEED OF THE CHURCH

Professor W. A. Brown says, "There is a need of a comradeship at once human and divine. As a human society, the church enlarges our sympathy and reinforces our power by uniting us with those who have followed Jesus before us or will follow Him after us."

As a divine creation it transmits God's revelation in Jesus from generation to generation, makes vivid the consciousness of God's presence by common worship and interprets to individuals and to nations his purpose for mankind."

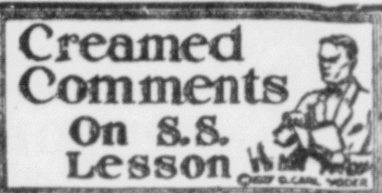

Why not accept the invitation and join us at church next Sunday? — D. Carl Yoder.

KAISER LAUNDRY

Eight days after his birth, the child Jesus was circumcised and on the eighth day after the nativity, the child was presented in the temple for the rite of purification; here is a picture for an artist—humble peasants with the poor man's offering, an inspired old man with the child Jesus in his arms and the still older mother.

V. 25. "And behold there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon; and this man was righteous and devout and looking for the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Spirit was upon him."

Simeon obeyed the outward commandments which made him righteous; he was pious, prayerful and worshipful which made him devout.

The secret of his being devout and righteous was in the fact that the Holy Spirit was upon him.

V. 26. "And it had been revealed unto him by the Holy Spirit, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ. It is then He may be found. Simeon's mind was so finely spiritualized that it was sensitive to the Holy Spirit's touch."

V. 27. "And he came in the Spirit into the temple; and when they that they might do concerning parents brought in the child Jesus him after the custom of the law."

Simeon though devout, did not give up his habit of church attendance. We never know what great blessing we shall receive when we go in the Spirit into the sanctuary. Parents should recognize God's right to their children and should dedicate them to the Lord in some way that will tie up the child to the fact that he belongs to God.

V. 28-32. "Then he received him into his arms and blessed God and said, Now lettest thou thy servant depart, Lord, according to thy word, in peace; for mine eyes have seen thy revelation which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples; a light for revelation to the Gentiles and the glory of thy people Israel." Simeon had reached the climax of his life and his soul burst forth in song. The first item in the song was salvation, for salvation is the radical need of humanity; Simeon saw salvation for all people. Any attempt to narrow the church of Christ to any particular class is a sin against the whole spirit of his gospel.

V. 33. "And his father and mother were marvelling at the things which were spoken concerning him." A larger Christ was revealed to Joseph and Mary by the saint Simeon. A growing Christian finds a larger Christ.

V. 34. "And Simeon blessed them and said unto Mary, his mother, behold this child is set for the falling and rising of many in Israel; and for a sign which is spoken against." The Christ is seen by Simeon as the stone on which some fall and are bruised (Luke 20:18) while others plant their foot on it and rise to a higher life.

V. 35. "Yea and a sword shall pierce through thine own soul; that thoughts out of many hearts may be revealed." Mary had to suffer the heartaches of her Son, despised, rejected, crucified. The word progresses through sacrifices and sufferings and many mothers are pierced with the sharpest swords. The greater the crown that is ever won, the heavier the cross that must first be borne.

V. 36, 37. "And there was one Anna, a prophetess and she had been a widow even unto fourscore and four years who departed not from the temple, worshipping with fastings and supplications night and day." Anna made much of worship in the temple, ever having her eyes turned heavenward; she was spiritually attuned and therefore saw spiritual things; if we are of a worldly spirit, we shall see only worldly things and shall miss seeing Christ.

V. 38. "And when they had accomplished all things that were according to the law of the Lord, they returned unto Galilee, to their own city Nazareth."

Matthew inserts many events which Luke omits—the return to Bethlehem, the visit of the magi, the flight into Egypt and the return. Jesus was soon to begin his life work, having been given to religious training common in his day. His early worship with Joseph and Mary was fundamental.

1. What evidences are there that there are saints as good today as those recorded in the Bible?

2. What was it that made Simeon and Anna saints?

3. Why does religious experience always break into song?

4. In what respects has Jesus brought a sword into the world?

5. What may be done to increase spiritual insight today?

6. What has church attendance to do with special revelations from God as taught in this lesson?

7. Why should children be dedicated to God in early life?

Clericus says, "A religious life is just towards men and devout towards God; if either of these elements is lacking it is one-sided and fatally defective. Like Jacob's ladder his feet rest on the earth, but its top leans against the sky."

Lesson Prayer: "Help us to learn the secret of true devotion and worship; lead us to regard divine favor a supreme thing in life and to express thy message in terms of human interest."

BOOK REVIEW

"Souls in Armor," A. E. Smith. Putnam Sons, contains a group of practical and inspiring baccalaureate messages as presented by Dr. Smith while he was president of a midwest university.

"The Motives of Men," deals with a discussion of what modern ways of living and thinking are doing to the human mind. It is courageously, frankly and concisely written.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the International Goodwill congress of the world alliance for international friendship through the churches will be held in Washington, D. C. Nov. 10-12. The program will offer a world survey of the international outlook, with special reference to government achievements and pending issues throughout the world according to a preliminary announcement.

The two sons of President Rubio of Mexico were recently enrolled in St. Benedict's Catholic College at Atchison, Kansas.

The general conference of the new Methodist Church of Mexico has elected the Rev. J. N. Pascoe bishop. This new church is a result of a merger recently of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal church, south. A council of co-operation will furnish relations to the mother churches of the United States making possible needed assistance.

Sadhu Sunder Singh, Christian preacher and lecturer, who was supposed to have gone into Tibet a couple of years ago, is still lost to the world, according to a statement recently made by the Indian government as follows: "Inquiries were made last year by a government officer who visited Tibet, but there was no trace of Sadhu Sunder Singh, nor is there proof that he ever entered Tibet."

Sunday is Communion Sunday at this church. Every member of the church remembers the words of the Lord Jesus "This do in remembrance of Me." Come to Communion next Sunday.

9:15 a. m. Sunday School. Plans are being made to make a greater and better school.

10:15 a. m. Session meeting for reception of members.

10:30 a. m. Communion service. Music by the choir. Appropriate organ numbers. Short meditation. "The Bridge of Forgiveness." Object lesson for the children. Reception of members.

7:30 p. m. Union services. The RBME Group Reformed Church. Rev. W. N. Shank.

Every day is God's day but more especially Sunday. Attendance upon the worship of God is the right way to spend Sunday. Come to church.

KEEPING A BALANCE

Home education calls for such directed thinking as to make a balanced life. The two terms at the extremes of life are called "radical" and "conservative." Americans are prone to call parents old fogies when they are conservative and children radical.

Consult a dictionary and see what the words conservative and radical mean. From what words are they derived? Note that one of them carries the idea of holding fast to the past; the other emphasizes the idea of getting at the root of the matter. Can a person be useful and balanced unless he does both of these things?

Turn to the life of Jesus. He has been called a conservative. He has also been labeled as a leader of the radicals. Is it fair to label Him as belonging to either group? Did he not show Himself true to the wisdom of the past and did he not get at the very root of the unsolved issues of his time?—D. Carl Yoder.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE

Creighton Stumbaugh and Millie Stumbaugh, his wife, whose place of residence is unknown, will take notice that The Peoples Building and Savings Company of Xenia, Ohio, did on the 28th day of August, 1930, file their petition in the Court of Common Pleas of Greene County, Ohio, praying for a foreclosure of Mortgage on Lot No. 22 First addition of The Osborn Removal Company of said Village of Osborn, Ohio. Said defendants are required to answer said petition on or before the 23rd day of November, 1930. C. W. Whitmer, Attorney. The Peoples Building and Savings Company. (9-26, 10-3-10-17-24-31, 11-7.)

BRINGING UP FATHER

here, and I'll get the rest back into the music room. Lady Gwendolen looks as if she might collapse any minute."

"That will be best, I think," the explorer spoke in a carefully controlled voice. "Gaspard, I presume is the butler. He can be trusted?" "Absolutely. You aren't afraid?" "To remain here?" Armstrong chuckled suddenly, a weird sound to break in on the eerie silence of that moment. "Hardly. Death is as familiar to me as life."

It took all the control Lady Dorothy had built up through the long years of social intercourse to prevent her from screaming. It was all so unbelievable, so unreal. She had no great affection for Lord Winston, though she loved his young sister dearly. She would have regretted his death for Lady Gwendolen's sake at any time, but that he should die here in her home and not a natural death, either, but be murdered, like a common adventurer, was more than she could bear. It appeared to her to imply some horrible reflection on her.

With poise she managed to get the guests all back to the music room. They sat around, grouped in couples, silently staring in front of them as if at an apparition. Lady Gwendolen sat all crumpled up in her chair, looking more dead than alive. She looked before her out of half-closed eyes with a dull, glassy stare, as if she saw nothing and heard nothing. And only at long intervals, as if somewhere within the depths realizing the tragedy, she gave vent to long poignant sighs, uttered faintly, which sounded startlingly like sobs.

The guests, in face of this suffering, looked from one to another frightened and helpless, until Muriel Haddon, forcing herself to act, rose from her seat and walked over to Lady Dorothy, whispered in her ear:

"I think I had better take Lady Gwendolen home. And someone had better stay with the poor child, I think. I'll stay there the night, if you like!"

"Please," was all Lady Dorothy could find strength to say, while her tired eyes expressed utterable gratitude.

READ THIS FIRST:
Robin Smith, a young and rising but extremely sensitive poet, is invited to make one of a country house party. He accepts because Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present; but he is so worked upon by the contrast between his youth, poverty and awkwardness and the polished, blasé manners of the other guests, that after quarreling with the Earl of Winston, Gwendolen's brother, and Donald Flint, her fiancé, he locks the door of his bedroom and flees through the window back to his attic room. When Robin does not reappear the house guests start a search for him. The Earl of Winston is also missing. The guests burst open the door to the poet's bedroom. They discover a body. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 9

Bruce Armstrong, who was first into the little room, turned to Sir George Ople, who was directly behind him.

"Get the women away, if you can," he said. "I'll attend to this. He held up his candle so that the faint, flickering ray fell full on the prone figure on the floor.

"Why, it isn't the poet!" exclaimed Lady Dorothy, in a thrill of voice. She had pushed her way to the side of Mr. Armstrong. "He wasn't wearing evening dress."

With a gesture of command, Armstrong thrust his candle into his hostess' hand and signalled Sir George to throw the rays from his on the fatal spot. Then he gently turned the figure until it was lying on its back and free from the concealment of the bed valances.

"Edward," breathed Lady Dorothy, scarcely audibly.

It was, indeed, Lord Winston, or rather what was left of his earthly self. The eyes were wide and staring; a curious twisted smile, scornful even in death, lay about the still mouth. The monocle lay against the white waistcoat. And on that same white waistcoat and no less white shirt was a thick and smeary red substance.

And from the left side, just where the heart should be protruded the curious filigreed handle of what seemed to be a medieval knife. It was evident at once that it was this knife which had caused the young earl's death.

The guests crowded silently around; they seemed too shocked for speech. In dismay they stared at the figure at their feet which so recently had been aflame with life. Muriel Haddon shuddered and drew away as Prince Pozolevsky pressed closer to her. She had loved Lord Winston; she still loved him. She knew it certainly in that moment. Once she had even hoped that the fates might be kind and let Edward care for her. But now he was dead, snuffed out like a candle in a whiff of air. It frightened her. Death was so sudden and fleet; it made life feel so uncertain and frail. Through the tears that were slowly stealing down her cheeks, she stole a glance up at her companion. The Prince was pale by nature, but the pallor which now held him in its grip was a different, more terrible sort. He might have been dead, too, but for the burning intensity of his eyes, which rested on the dead man with an expression of triumph difficult to understand.

Meanwhile Lady Gwendolen had quickly removed from her faint caused by the revelation of that first bright flash of lightning. She struggled to her feet and, leaning on her fiancé's arm, pressed into the group. When she reached Bruce Armstrong, he interposed his huge bulk between her and the object of all eyes.

"I must see," she begged, pitifully. "Oh, let me see, let me see, please."

"It can do no good, my dear Lady Gwendolen," Armstrong said gently, as he put a restraining hand on her arm. "We must all but one leave here. We can do no good."

"I know he is dead. But I want to see him just once more," she begged, pushing to get past him.

Lady Dorothy put her arm protectively around the young girl on one side, while the explorer supported her on the other. Donald Flint looked over her shoulder, his hand caressingly on her back.

There was a tense silence. No one stirred. Lady Gwendolen stood, her eyes riveted on her dead brother, and made neither movement nor sound. Her grief was too great for weeping. Tears would not relieve her, nor would they console her. She was beyond consolation. Dry-eyed, she stared and stared, as if hypnotized.

Then, quite unexpectedly, the gleam of the metal on his left breast caught her eye; she was on her knees beside him in an instant. Her slender, unflexed fingers touched the heavily embossed handle as if it were a friend. Then she turned her head to the many faces staring down at her; her eyes were wide and thoughtful. There was a puzzled frown between her brows.

"That is Edward's knife," she said, softly. "I have seen it often at home, years ago. I didn't know he had it here."

"Your brother's knife? But that isn't possible!" exclaimed Lady Dorothy. "You don't think he killed himself?"

"No," Lady Gwendolen rose unsteadily to her feet. "No, I am sure he did not," she went on, wearily. "We must send for the police at once."

"Just what I intended doing," assented Bruce Armstrong. By this time four servants had gathered in the hall, attracted by the mystery and excitement. The explorer looked over the little knot of people. He was wondering whom he could trust, when Lady Andree exclaimed in a shrill, uncontrolled voice:

"But where is Mr. Smith? Where is he? The door was locked—I don't understand."

It was as if they had all forgotten the poet until that moment. "Yes, where is he?" exclaimed her husband, in turn. "And how did his door come to be locked?"

"His bag is gone!" It was Lady Dorothy who spoke. "I ordered it brought here." She looked wildly about the room, which was now more completely lighted with the assistance of the two lamps it contained.

"I put his bag here myself, Your Ladyship," interpolated the butler. "There, on that stand against the wall."

The stand was empty. For the first time the guests became aware of the possible significance of the open window. Armstrong strode to it and leaned far out, his candle held before him. It had stopped raining, but a whiff of wind almost immediately extinguished the tiny flame. But not before he had seen two deep footprints in the soft earth below.

"Mr. Smith evidently took his leave by the window," he said, as he turned again into the room. "He has left conspicuous footprints below." He pointed his thumb in the direction of the open casement.

"Gaspard has gone to phone for Dr. Middlebury and the police," Lady Dorothy whispered to the explorer as he joined her. "You stay here, and I'll get the rest back into the music room. Lady Gwendolen looks as if she might collapse any minute."

"That will be best, I think," the explorer spoke in a carefully controlled voice. "Gaspard, I presume, is the butler. He can be trusted?"

"Absolutely. You aren't afraid?" "To remain here?" Armstrong chuckled suddenly, a weird sound to break in on the eerie silence of that moment. "Hardly. Death is as familiar to me as life."

It took all the control Lady Dorothy had built up through the long years of social intercourse to prevent her from screaming. It was all so unbelievable, so unreal. BRINGING UP FATHER

The Theater

Harold Lloyd may undergo an operation for appendicitis before his next picture, says Harrison Carroll from Hollywood. The comedian has decided that, if he shows the slightest symptom like those which held up the production of "Feet First" he will go into a hospital and have the matter settled once and for all.

In the meantime Harold contemplates a two-weeks stay in New York. He has finished "Feet First" and will preview it in fifteen reels and, if the laughs warrant, twelve of these will be retained.

He will probably leave Hollywood for the East October 18. His next picture will be a football story and will be made in Oregon and Washington. Production starts this winter but the film is intended for release during the 1931 football season.

While Pathe has been trying to make up its mind about the script for Ann Harding's next picture, Fox has completed preparations for "East Lynne" and has requested that the blonde star appear for rehearsal October 20.

A contract made last year promises Ann's appearance in the Fox picture, so Pathe will have to postpone "The Greater Love" and accept the situation with as much grace as it can muster. This film is not to be confused with "The Great Lover," an old Leo Dittichstein vehicle, which Dr. Paul Foxes will direct for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, his first assignment since he left Universal where "Broadway" was his best known production.

One of Octavius Roy Cohan's stories, "Alias Mrs. Wallace," will be William Powell's next picture at Paramount. The screen adaptation is now being made by Bartlett Cormack under the tentative title of "Buy Your Woman." Powell will be supported in the film by Carole Lombard. The spelling of her first name is correct, she having added the extra "e" on advice of numerologists.

Remember ten years ago when Robert Warwick was a popular leading man of the time in pictures? Well, Warwick is back in Hollywood and will appear in "Once a Sinner" for Fox. The story is by George Middleton and will be directed by Guthrie McClintic of Broadway fame. Back in the old days Warwick starred in a silent version of "The Man from Blankley's" which John Barrymore recently did for the sound pictures. He was a major on General Pershing's staff during the war and has been on the stage and in vaudeville since leaving the films.

Did you know that Claremore, Okla., has a Will Rogers Hotel? It is a six-story building and Will says it has more baths than Buckingham Palace.

Harold Lloyd may undergo an operation for appendicitis before his next picture, says Harrison Carroll from Hollywood.

The comedian has decided that the extra "e" on advice of numerologists. If he shows the slightest symptom like those which held up the production of "Feet First" he will go into a hospital and have the matter settled once and for all.

In the meantime Harold contemplates a two-weeks stay in New York. He has finished "Feet First" and will preview it in fifteen reels and, if the laughs warrant, twelve of these will be retained.

He will probably leave Hollywood for the East October 15. His next picture will be a football story and will be made in Oregon and Washington. Production starts this winter but the film is intended for release during the 1931 football season.

While Pathe has been trying to make up its mind about the script for Ann Harding's next picture, Fox has completed preparations for "East Lynne" and has requested that the blonde star appear for rehearsal October 20.

A contract made last year promises Ann's appearance in the Fox picture, so Pathe will have to postpone "The Greater Love" and accept the situation with as much grace as it can muster. This film is not to be confused with "The Great Lover," an old Leo Dittichstein vehicle, which Dr. Paul Fojas will direct for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, his first assignment since he left Universal where "Broadway" was his best known production.

One of Octavius Roy Cohan's stories, "Alias Mrs. Wallace," will be William Powell's next picture at Paramount. The screen adaptation is now being made by Bartlett Cormack under the tentative title of "Buy Your Woman." Powell will be supported in the film by Carole Lombard. The spelling of her first name is correct, she having added
